I. QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the abuse of discretion standard imposed by the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit is Constitutionally impermissible - where trial Court which had an obligation to protect the Constitutional rights of a criminal defendant deliberately deprived him of his Constitutional rights and the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit refused to correct the errors of trial Court.

2. Whether trial Court abused its obligation to protect the Constitutional rights of a criminal defendant at trial - where trial Court deliberately caused the deprivation of a criminal defendant's Constitutional right in an endeavor to unjustly deprive him of liberty.

IV. PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI
TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

Petitioner Raheem Jefferson Brennerman respectfully petitions this Court for a writ of certiorari to review the judgment and order of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit entered on June 9, 2020. Mr. Brennerman's motion for rehearing en banc was denied on September 9, 2020.

V. OPINION BELOW

On June 9, 2020, a panel of the Second Circuit affirmed Petitioner's conviction. United States v. Brennerman, No. 18 1033, 2020 WL 3053867 (2d Cir. June 9, 2020) (Summary Order). Mr. Brennerman's motion for rehearing en banc was denied by an Order of the Second Circuit dated September 9, 2020. See No. 18 1033 Cr., EFC No. 318.

VI. JURISDICTION

The Court of Appeals' judgment affirming Petitioner's conviction and sentence was entered on June 9, 2020. See 18 1033, EFC No. 286. Mr. Brennerman's motion for rehearing en banc was denied on September 9, 2020. See No. 18 1033, EFC No. 314; 318. Following a 150-day period for filing, including the ordinary 90-day filing period plus the 60-day additional time provided by administrative order relating to the COVID-19 pandemic, this Petition for Certiorari would have expired on February 9, 2021. The petition is being filed postmark on or before that date. Sup. Ct. R. 13(1); 13(3); 13(5); 29(2); 30(1). Petitioner invokes this Court's jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).

VII. CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

Title 18 U.S.C § 401(3) provides:

A court of the United States shall have power to punish by fine or imprisonment, or both, at its discretion, such contempt of its authority, and none other, as—

(3) Disobedience or resistance to its lawful writ, process, order, rule, decree, or command.

The Fifth Amendment provides:

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

The Sixth Amendment provides:

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

VIII. STATEMENT OF CASE

This case presents a matter of significant public interest in highlighting the unusual instance where the Courts, that have an obligation to protect the Constitutional rights of a criminal defendant, veers from the permissible to the impermissible with the Courts deliberately violating the Constitutional rights of Petitioner. The attack on Petitioner Raheem J. Brennerman is an attack on the rule of law, civil rights and liberties affecting everyone as well as the very fabric of United States' democracy. The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit has a Constitutional obligation to review de novo meaning for clear error. See United States v. Bershchansky, 755 F.3d 102, 108 (2d Cir. 2015) (internal citation and quotation marks omitted) The Circuit Court exacerbated the Constitutional deprivation already suffered by Petitioner by imposing a Constitutionally impermissible abuse of discretion standard with its review.

Petitioner seeks review of this case for clarification on the obligations of the Courts - United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York particularly where a criminal defendant's right has been so abridged and abrogated because of his race resulting in a fundamental miscarriage of justice.

The Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution states, "No person shall be deprived . . . of life, liberty or property without the due process of law." The due process right is enshrined in the bedrock of our democracy by imposing the equal protection of law doctrine. Abdul-Akbar v. McKelvie, 239 F.3d 307, 316-17 (3d Cir. 2001) (en banc) (Although the Fifth Amendment contains no Equal Protection Clause . . . [t]he [Supreme] Court has construed the Fifth Amendment to contain an Equal Protection Guarantee [;] . . . Fifth Amendment Equal Protection claims are examined under the same principle that apply to such claims under the Fourteenth Amendment) (internal citations omitted).

The Court had previously promulgated that a criminal defendant has a Sixth Amendment right to present a complete defense. See Crane v. Ky., 476 U.S. 683 (1986) (holding that "It is a federal law that a criminal defendant has a Constitutional right to present a complete defense). The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit recently adopted such holding in Scrimo while creating disparity with Petitioner. Scrimo v. Lee, 935 F.3d 103 (2d Cir. 2019).

Review of this case is warranted as a matter of public interest to emphasize conformity and uniformity with the law and Constitution among lower Courts in ensuring adherence with their Constitutional obligations and to avoid attack on the civil rights and liberties of criminal defendants because of their race, sex or religion.

BACKGROUND

The history of this matter began in 2014 when ICBC (London) PLC sued The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc ("Blacksands") in New York Supreme Court primarily alleging, inter alia that Blacksands had failed to repay approximately $4.4 million dollars extended to Blacksands pursuant to a Bridge Loan Agreement. Significantly, Petitioner Raheem J. Brennerman, the CEO of Blacksands, was not named as a defendant in that action. (Notice of Removal; Cv. Cover Sheet, ICBC (London) PLC v. The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 1-2).

Blacksands removed the case to the Southern District of New York and the matter was assigned to Hon. Lewis A. Kaplan, under the caption ICBC (London) PLC v. The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc. (Notice of Removal, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 1). Based on the loan documents, Judge Kaplan granted ICBC London's motion for summary judgment against Blacksands. (Mem. Op., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 38).

ICBC London then served Blacksands with extremely broad post-judgment discovery requests. Blacksands counsel, Latham & Watkins LLP ("Latham") interposed objections to those demands and filed a brief in support of those objections. (See Def. Interrog., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 84 Ex. 2); (Mem.; Def.'s Decl., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC Nos. 85, 86). The Court conducting no analysis regarding the permissible scope of post-judgment discovery of the actual breadth of plaintiff's demands, instead in conclusionary fashion declared that the objections were "baseless" and that Blacksands "shall comply fully." (See Order, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 87).

Subsequently, ICBC London moved for contempt and coercive sanctions against Blacksands. (Order to Show Cause; Pl.'s Decl.; Mem., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC Nos. 101, 102-103). On October 24, 2016, Judge Kaplan granted ICBC London's motion holding Blacksands in contempt and imposing coercive sanctions. (Order, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 108). Over the course of the next two weeks, on November 4 and November 10, 2016, Mr. Brennerman on behalf of Blacksands provided detailed discovery responses to ICBC London, including approximately 400 pages of documents, in an effort to comply with ICBC London's discovery requests. (See Pl.'s Decl., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC. No. 123, ¶¶ 9, 11-12). Mr. Brennerman also made continued efforts without support from other shareholders and partners to settle the matter with ICBC London, including meeting with ICBC London executives in London and providing them with even more information about Blacksands and its pending transaction, which were pertinent to Blacksands settlement efforts. (See Pl.'s Decl., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 123, ¶¶ 45, 9, 11-12).

On December 7, 2016, ICBC London moved for civil contempt against Mr. Brennerman personally, even though he was not a named defendant in the matter and was not personally named in any discovery orders. (Order; Mem.; Pl.'s Decl., No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC Nos. 121-23). A contempt hearing was scheduled for December 13, 2016, less than a week later. (Corrected Order, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 125).

Mr. Brennerman, however, did not have counsel. In fact, Latham repeatedly and consistently communicated to the Court, and to Mr. Brennerman that they did not represent Mr. Brennerman personally. (See e.g. Letter, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 124). Although Mr. Brennerman was out of the country at the time he learned of the pending contempt hearing against him, he immediately sought to retain counsel to represent him in the contempt proceeding and wrote the Court requesting a reasonable adjournment because he was currently outside the United States and needed more time to retain counsel. (Email; Letter, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC Nos. 127-28) (Judge Kaplan was previously a partner at Paul Weiss LLP which represented Mr. Brennerman at the time thus the law firm could not appear before Judge Kaplan hence why Mr. Brennerman had to retain another law firm to represent him for the contempt proceedings). Judge Kaplan denied Mr. Brennerman's request on December 12, 2016 (Order, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC No. 134), and found Mr. Brennerman personally in contempt on December 13, 2016. (Orders, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC Nos. 139-40). While Mr. Brennerman had provided a substantial document production in November, after Blacksands was found in contempt, the Court made no mention of it and appeared not to have reviewed or considered that production in its determination that Mr. Brennerman was himself in contempt. (Orders, 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC. Nos. 139-40).

On December 13, 2016 when Judge Kaplan held Mr. Brennerman personally in contempt, he [Judge Kaplan] ignored the law from the Second Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in OSRecovery, where the Appeals Court stated directly to Judge Kaplan in relevant parts: ("[T]he District Court abused its discretion by issuing a contempt order to a non-party for failing to respond to discovery request propounded to him as a party without providing sufficient legal authority or explanation for treating him as a party solely for the purpose of discovery)) and held Mr. Brennerman in contempt (even though there were no court order[s] directed at him personally. No subpoena or motion-to-compel were directed at him). OSRecovery, Inc., v. One Groupe Int'l, Inc., 462 F.3d 87, 90 (2d Cir. 2006).

Judge Kaplan also ignored the federal rule to conduct extra-judicial research into Mr. Brennerman by Googling him. (See Bail Hr.'g Tr., United States v. Brennerman, No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), EFC No. 12 Ex. 1 at 28). Then following the erroneous contempt propounded against Mr. Brennerman, Judge Kaplan referred him to the Manhattan federal prosecutors (United States Attorney Office for the Southern District of New York "USAO, SDNY") and persuaded the prosecutors to arrest Mr. Brennerman and prosecute him criminally. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), EFC No. 12 Ex. 2).

THE CRIMINAL REFERRAL, THE PETITION AND EX PARTE CONFERENCE BETWEEN JUDGE KAPLAN AND THE GOVERNMENT

In late 2016 or early 2017, Judge Kaplan referred Blacksands and Mr. Brennerman personally to the United States Attorney's Office for criminal prosecution.

Thereafter, on March 3, 2017, the government filed a Petition seeking to initiate criminal contempt proceedings against Blacksands and Mr. Brennerman personally, including an Order to Show Cause for them to appear in Court to answer the charges. On March 7, 2017, Judge Kaplan summoned AUSAs Robert Benjamin Sobelman and Nicolas Tyler Landsman-Roos to his robing room to advise that an arrest warrant should be issued for Mr. Brennerman. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), EFC No. 12 Ex. 2). The prosecution, consistent with Fed. R. Crim. P. 42, had prepared an Order to Show Cause that would have directed Blacksands and Mr. Brennerman to appear before the Court on a date in the future. The Court made clear, however that it did not agree with the government's approach and advised the prosecutors that the Court should issue an arrest warrant instead as to Mr. Brennerman, stating his assumption that "the United States can't find him." The prosecutors repeatedly expressed their view that execution of an arrest warrant was not necessary under the circumstances. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), EFC No. 12 Ex. 2). The prosecutors advised, first, that Mr. Brennerman had actually called them on Friday, March 3, 2017, the same day that the Petition was filed to talk to them about that Petition. Id. The prosecutors informed Mr. Brennerman that he could not speak with him, and Mr. Brennerman then provided his phone number so that "there may be a way for the government to be in touch with him via that telephone number." The prosecutors then proposed that the Order to Show Cause previously prepared and filed by the government, could be entered to require Mr. Brennerman to attend the conference and "should he not appear, [] a summons or arrest warrant be issued to secure his appearance." Id.

The Court continued to press the issue of an arrest warrant, asking "[w]hy shouldn't I, given the history in this case issue a warrant?" (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), EFC No. 12 Ex. 2 At 5). The Prosecutors responded with a number of reasons, stating:

Mr. Brennerman did try to contact the government on Friday, and we don't know that he has absconded or seeks to abscond. He's already knowledgeable about the petition. His email address is included on the ECF notification that went out when the petition was publicly filed. He appears to have the resources to have fled had he intended to, and the government thinks it's prudent to provide him an opportunity to appear at the conference voluntarily.

Id. The prosecution went on to say that, even if the Court issued an arrest warrant, "the government would likely provide Mr. Brennerman an opportunity to surrender rather than dispatching law enforcement to apprehend him without providing that opportunity." Id.

The Court pressed on, stating "I'm inclined to issue an arrest warrant" and pushed back against the prospect that Mr. Brennerman should be allowed to surrender: "Now, if the government is going to give him an opportunity to surrender; there's a substantial question as to whether I'm wasting my time because I think the odds are not unreasonable that he will abscond". Id. at 6.

Eventually the prosecutors deferred to the Court and confirmed that if an arrest warrant was issued, they would discuss in their office how best to proceed. Id. at 7. Thus, as of March 7, 2017, when the government entered the robing room, there was no pending investigation of fraud as to Mr. Brennerman with the prosecutors in the Southern District of New York, and the government was prepared to proceed with a contempt proceeding by Order to Show Cause and had no concern that Mr. Brennerman would seek to abscond.

Thus pursuant to the arrest warrant prepared and signed by Judge Kaplan, Mr. Brennerman was arrested on April 19, 2017 at his home in Las Vegas. As of the date of the arrest warrant and because the Court had declined to sign the order to show cause presented by the government, there was no actual contempt charge pending against Mr. Brennerman. The Court omitted Mr. Brennerman from the signed Order to Show Cause but then failed to otherwise rule or grant the government's Petition as it related to Mr. Brennerman. There was, therefore, no proper basis for the arrest warrant. The Court's decision to alter the warrant to reference the Petition was inadequate to support the warrant. (The arrest warrant included an option for a Probation Violation Petition; those instruments, unlike a Petition in a contempt proceeding, actually do charge an offense). (See Arrest Warrant, No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), EFC No. 12 Ex. 3).

Mr. Brennerman's arrest on April 19, 2017 (when government seized his electronic devices and documents (which was adduced as evidence (e-mails between Mr. Brennerman (on behalf of Blacksands) and Madgett (ICBC London) at trial of the contempt and fraud case (where the government actually never obtained or reviewed any pertinent ICBC transaction files from ICBC (London) plc) was in violation of both Mr. Brennerman's Fourth and Fifth Amendment rights.

THE INDICTMENT AND ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

On May 31, 2017, weeks after Mr. Brennerman was released on bail in the criminal contempt of court case, he was re-arrested by the U.S. Attorney's Office pursuant to an indictment alleging fraud in connection with the transaction that was at issue in the underlying civil action, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK) between ICBC (London) PLC and The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc (even though the civil action had been ongoing for two and half years at that point) Mr. Brennerman was charged with Conspiracy to commit bank and wire fraud, bank fraud and wire fraud. Id. The case was assigned to Hon. Richard J. Sullivan, under the caption, United States v. Brennerman, No. 17 Cr. 337 (RJS).

In August 2017, because Judge Kaplan had failed to sign the Order to Show Cause as it related to Mr. Brennerman in the criminal contempt of court case at No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK) (even though Mr. Brennerman had been arrested at the behest of Judge Kaplan) he had revoked the bail granted to Mr. Brennerman even without any violations of the bail conditions. The government realizing their error filed a new two count Order to Show Cause Petition formally charging Mr. Brennerman in the criminal contempt of court case. (See Order to Show Cause, Brennerman No. 17 Cr. 155, EFC No. 59).

THE DISTRICT COURT`S DECISION

In August 2017, prior to trial for the criminal contempt of court case, Mr. Brennerman sought to obtain the complete ICBC records (including the underwriting file and negotiations between agents of Blacksands and ICBC London) to demonstrate his innocence and to present a complete defense. However Mr. Brennerman`s request to the Manhattan federal prosecutors was denied. The [Manhattan federal prosecutors] refused to obtain or review the complete ICBC records including the underwriting files, arguing that they were not obligated to collect any additional evidence from ICBC London beyond what the bank had selectively provided to them. Judge Kaplan also denied Mr. Brennerman`s request seeking to compel the complete ICBC record. See 17-cr-155 (LAK), Dkt. No. 76

THE TRIAL AND POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS

During trial, District Court (Judge Kaplan) rejected defendant argument regarding presentment of the civil contempt order to the jury, ruling that the government could present evidence that both the company and Mr. Brennerman had been found in contempt of Court (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), at 3-7). A juror named Gordon later told the media - Law 360 that the civil contempt orders swayed the jury to find Mr. Brennerman guilty of criminal contempt (See Law 360 Article, No. 17 Cr. 337 (RJS), EFC No. 236, Ex. 3 at 17).

Mr. Brennerman was deprived of the very evidence he required to defend himself. Although such evidence (agents of ICBC London requesting settlement discussion) plainly was relevant to the issue of Mr. Brennerman's willfulness in failing to comply with the Court's discovery orders, the District Court refused repeatedly to allow counsel to elicit such evidence on the issue and so the record was devoid of the precise evidence that would have demonstrated the defendant's lack of intent (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), at 269-277; 236-249).

The District Court went a step further and proposed an instruction to the jury that settlement discussions in a civil case did not excuse a defendant's failure to comply with the court's discovery order absent an order suspending or modifying the requirement to comply (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), at 509-510). Defense counsel objected arguing that even if that were technically true, if the parties specifically engaged in settlement discussion with the understanding that discovery would not be pursued, such evidence was certainly relevant to defendant's intent in not complying with the Court's order and should have been considered by the jury. The District Court (Judge Kaplan) overruled counsel's objection and instructed the jury as indicated. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), at 538-544).

The trial commenced on September 6, 2017 and concluded on September 12, 2017 with the jury returning a guilty verdict on both counts of criminal contempt.

THE COURT OF APPEAL DECISION

The Second Circuit found that the District Court did not err in its failure to compel ICBC's production of its entire file because Brennerman did not comply with the rules governing subpoenas under Rule 17(d) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure when he served ICBC's New York-based attorney, not the ICBC's London branch. United States v. Brennerman, No. 18 1033(L), WL 3053867 at *1 (2d Cir. June 9, 2020). The Court further concluded that, "the prosecution was under no obligation to make efforts to obtain information beyond what it previously collected and turned over to Brennerman." Id.

As to the evidence concerning settlement discussions, the Second Circuit found that the district court had allowed Brennerman "to introduce evidence concerning settlement discussions on the condition that he establish his knowledge of the substance of the exhibits and their relationship to the relevant time period..." and that "through cross-examination, Brennerman was able to introduce evidence about the parties' settlement discussions. Id. at *2. The Second Circuit found that "the district court did not abuse its discretion in admitting some but not all of this evidence, and Brennerman had failed to point to any specific evidence that would have helped his case had it been submitted." Id.

In regard to the admission of the civil contempt order against Brennerman, the Second Circuit found that "the district court correctly determined, the civil contempt orders were relevant to Brennerman's willfulness. To minimize any potential prejudicial effect, the district court redacted portions of the orders and instructed the jury on the limited purposes for which it could consider the civil contempt orders in the context of a trial about criminal contempt." Id.

The panel denied a motion for rehearing by order dated September 9, 2020. (See Order, No. 18 1033, EFC No 318).

IX. REASON FOR GRANTING CERTIORARI

ARGUMENT

This Petition presents an opportunity for the Court to clarify (a) whether the abuse of discretion standard imposed by United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit is Constitutionally permissible - where the Circuit Court refused to correct errors which substantively abridges and abrogates the rights of criminal defendant which are protected by the United States Constitution and (b) where trial Court deliberately deprived the criminal defendant of his Constitutional rights thus violating his Fifth and Sixth Amendment rights of the U.S. Constitution.

This case will clarify the obligations of lower Courts as a matter of public interest to emphasize conformity and uniformity with the law and Constitution among lower Courts in ensuring adherence with their Constitutional obligations and avoid attack on the civil rights and liberty of criminal defendants because of their race, sex or religion.

I. THE SECOND CIRCUIT ERRED IN AFFIRMING THE DISTRICT COURT`S 1) ADMISSION OF THE CIVIL CONTEMPT ORDER AGAINST PETITIONER; 2) FAILURE TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF CERTAIN EXONERATORY MATERIALS; AND 3) PRECLUSION OF THE ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE PERTAINING TO SETTLEMENT NEGOTIATIONS, BECAUSE THE ISSUES RAISED ARE QUESTION OF EXCEPTIONAL IMPORTANCE. THIS CASE RAISE ISSUES OF IMPORTANT SYSTEMIC CONSEQUENCES FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE LAW AND ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

A. ADMISSION OF THE CIVIL CONTEMPT ORDER VIOLATED
PETITIONER'S CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS WHERE THE COURT FAILED TO AFFORD HIM THE EQUAL PROTECTION GUARANTEE AND THE PROSECUTION VIOLATED HIS RIGHT TO DUE PROCESS OF LAW

In OSRecovery, the Second Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals vacated civil contempt adjudicated by Judge Lewis A. Kaplan ("Judge Kaplan") against a party who was not part of the civil case. OSRecovery, Inc., v. One Groupe Int'l, Inc., 462 F.3d 87, 90 (2d Cir. 2006). In vacating the contempt order the Court of Appeals stated directly to Judge Kaplan that the Court abused its discretion by holding a non-party in civil contempt propounded against him solely for the purpose of discovery without providing any legal authority or clear explanation for doing so. In 2016, Judge Kaplan ignored the law and held Petitioner, a non-party who was not involved in the underlying case, ICBC (London) PLC v. The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc., in contempt without providing any legal authority or clear explanation. (See Order; Mem. & Order, No. 15 Cv. 70 EFC. Nos. 139-40). This time, Judge Kaplan went a step further and referred Petitioner to Manhattan prosecutors to be prosecuted criminally. The prosecution undertook no diligence or investigation prior to initiating criminal contempt charges against Petitioner.

During trial of the criminal contempt of court case, Judge Kaplan permitted the prosecution to present to the jury the civil contempt order erroneously adjudged against Petitioner which was in tension with the law. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), at 3-7). Such presentment significantly prejudiced Petitioner, because the judge allowed the presentment of an erroneously adjudged civil contempt order as evidence to the jury (that concluded that Petitioner must be guilty of criminal contempt), without allowing Petitioner to present the background to the adjudication of the civil contempt order. (See Law 360 Article, No. 17 Cr. 337 (RJS), EFC No. 236, Ex. 3 at 17).

The question of whether the civil contempt order was properly admitted against Petitioner goes beyond a simple analysis of Rules 403 and 404(b) of the Federal Rules of Evidence. Petitioner was a non-party in the civil lawsuit at the time of the order. Because the order was erroneously adjudged against him, its erroneous admission had more serious legal implication above and beyond an abuse of discretion analysis.

The Second Circuit had previously held that "because the power of a district court to impose contempt liability is carefully limited, our review of a contempt order for abuse of discretion is more rigorous than would be the case in other situations in which abuse-of-discretion review is conducted."

Hester Indus., Inc. v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 160 F.3d 911, 916 (2d Cir. 1998). "Moreover, we think it is fundamentally unfair to hold [a non-party] in contempt as if he were a party without legal support for treating him, a non-party, as a party but only for the purpose of discovery." OSRecovery, Inc., 462 F.3d at 90. In OSRecovery, the Second Circuit court had found that the district court abused its discretion by holding a person "in contempt as a party without sufficient explanation or citation to legal authority supporting the basis upon which the court relied in treating [him] as a party—for discovery purposes only—despite the fact that [he] was not actually a party." Id. at 93.

Here Judge Lewis A. Kaplan (the same district judge whose contempt order the Second Circuit court found inappropriate in OSRecovery) held Petitioner in civil contempt as a non-party and failed to provide any legal authority or present any particular theory for treating him as a party solely for the purpose of discovery. (See Order; Mem. & Order, No. 15 Cv. 70 (LAK), EFC. Nos. 139-40). No court orders, subpoenas, or motion to compel were ever directed at Petitioner personally nor was he present during the civil case's various proceedings.

The erroneous admission of the civil contempt order was more than an evidentiary error. It violated the Second Circuit court's instructions concerning contempt order against non-parties. On appeal, the Second Circuit affirmed district court's rulings creating disparity with the Second Circuit's treatment and review of such order's and deprived Petitioner of his Constitutional right to an equal protection guarantee.

B. FAILURE TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF CERTAIN EXCULPATORY MATERIALS VIOLATED PETITIONER'S SIXTH AMENDMENT RIGHT, WHERE HE WAS DEPRIVED OF THE EVIDENCE HE REQUIRED TO PRESENT A COMPLETE DEFENSE

Petitioner's central argument concerning the ICBC production requests is that there existed exculpatory evidence materials that were not provided to him and could not otherwise be compelled due to Rule 17 limitations regarding foreign entities. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 337 (RJS), at 551-554). The Second Circuit did not address Petitioner's argument that, if the government claimed that it had produced all documents in its possession but the omission of the entire file was glaringly obvious, then it follows that the government was aware that relevant information existed and was therefore withholding material that it could (and should) have obtained, in violation of Brady. See Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963).

Because Petitioner was effectively barred from obtaining relevant evidence, such as the entirety of his communications with ICBC representatives, due to subpoena constraints, he was denied the opportunity to put forth a complete defense.

Because no meaningful inquiry was conducted, either at the district court or before the Second Circuit, concerning the discrepancies between the government's representations that the production was complete and the obviously incomplete materials produced, the issue of whether Brady obligations were flouted by the government remains open. See Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963). The sanctity of Brady obligations cannot be interpreted as anything less than a question of exceptional importance warranting further reconsideration on this point. See Id.

C. PRECLUSION OF THE ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE PERTAINING TO SETTLEMENT NEGOTIATIONS (DUE TO FAILURE TO PERMIT FULL SETTLEMENT NEGOTIATION EVIDENCE) VIOLATED PETITIONER'S CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT WHERE HE WAS DEPRIVED OF EVIDENCE HE REQUIRED TO PRESENT A COMPLETE DEFENSE

Without the entire ICBC file, Petitioner was precluded from presenting evidence regarding settlement negotiations between Blacksands and ICBC. Petitioner avers that evidence of these negotiations would have convinced the jury that he had not willfully disobeyed any court orders.

Although Petitioner was permitted certain lines of questioning concerning settlement negotiations, the admitted evidence was woefully inadequate to set forth his complete defense. Petitioner was attempting to elicit evidence of settlement discussions with agents of ICBC that, he argued, would have demonstrated that he was not willfully disobeying the district court's discovery orders but was instead prioritizing settlement with ICBC over Blacksands' discovery obligations. This evidence was not permitted, could not be elicited through cross-examination of witnesses, and was not part of the jury instruction. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. 155 (LAK), at 236-277). Although such evidence was plainly relevant to the issue of Petitioner's willfulness in failing to comply with the court's discovery orders, the record was devoid of the precise evidence that would have demonstrated the Petitioner's lack and intent. The district court exacerbated the harm by instructing the jury that settlement discussions in a civil case did not excuse a defendant's failure to comply with the court's discovery order absent an order suspending or modifying the requirements to comply. (See Trial Tr., No. 17 Cr. at 509-510; 538-544).

The limitation on evidence of settlement negotiations was not merely an evidentiary issue, but rather, a constitutional one which violated Petitioner's right to present a defense. The violation was compounded by the fact that the district court essentially eviscerated the element of intent in determining whether Petitioner was guilty of criminal contempt. The Second Circuit's decision failed to address the manner in which the district court's evidentiary rulings precluded Petitioner's right to present a complete defense.

The danger of the Second Circuit rule is amply demonstrated by the consequences of erosion of public trust in the United States Justice system and other institutions. As the Fourth Circuit recently promulgated "what gives people confidence in our justice system is not that we merely get things right rather, it is that we live in a system that upholds the rule of law even when it is inconvenient to do so". The lower Court - United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and United States District Court for the Southern District of New York veered from the rule of law in this case. Interests of comity - in addition to fairness and substantial justice as embodied in the Due Process Clause and the U.S. Constitution - warrant reversal of the Second Circuit decision.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

RAHEEM BRENNERMAN,

Defendant-Appellant,

THE BLACKSANDS PACIFIC GROUP, INC.,

Defendant.

Appearing for Appellant: John C. Meringolo, Meringolo & Associates, P.C., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Appearing for Appellee: Danielle Renee Sassoon, Assistant United States Attorney (Nicholas Tyler Roos, Robert B. Sobelman, Anna M. Skotko, Assistant United States Attorneys, on the brief), for Geoffrey S. Berman, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, New York, N.Y.

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (Kaplan, J.).

ON CONSIDERATION WHEREOF, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that the judgment be and it hereby is AFFIRMED.

Defendant-Appellant Raheem Brennerman appeals from the May 21, 2018, judgment of conviction entered in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (Kaplan, J.), sentencing him principally to 24 months' imprisonment followed by 3 years' supervised release. Following a jury trial, Brennerman was convicted of two counts of criminal contempt, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 401(3). We assume the parties' familiarity with the underlying facts, procedural history, and specification of issues for review.

On appeal, Brennerman argues that the district court committed reversible error by: (1) denying his motion to compel compliance with a subpoena that sought the production of certain documents from the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China's London branch ("ICBC"); (2) making improper evidentiary rulings; (3) denying his second Rule 33 motion as untimely; and (4) imposing a procedurally and substantively unreasonable sentence. He further argues that he received constitutionally deficient assistance of counsel.

I. ICBC Subpoena

Rule 17 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure governs the issuance of trial subpoenas in criminal cases. A decision to deny, quash, or modify a subpoena "must be left to the trial judge's sound discretion" and "is not to be disturbed on appeal unless it can be shown that [the district court] acted arbitrarily and abused its discretion or that its finding was without support in the record." In re Irving, 600 F.2d 1027, 1034 (2d Cir. 1979).

We find that the district court appropriately concluded that Brennerman failed to effect service of the subpoena on ICBC as required by Rule 17(d). Significantly, Rule 17 provides that "[t]he server must deliver a copy of the subpoena to the witness." Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(d). In an attempt to serve the subpoena, Brennerman sent a copy to ICBC's New York-based attorney in the underlying civil case, not to ICBC's London branch. This plainly did not comply with the rule.

To the extent Brennerman argues that the government was required to retrieve the documents for him, that argument is also meritless. ICBC is not an agent of the government, and therefore the prosecution was under no obligation to make efforts to obtain information beyond what it previously collected and turned over to Brennerman. Cf. United States v. Yousef, 327 F.3d 56, 112 (2d Cir. 2003).

II. Evidentiary Rulings

Brennerman next challenges the exclusion of certain evidence concerning settlement discussions with opposing counsel in the civil case, as well as documents Brennerman purportedly provided to ICBC in 2013. He also argues that the district court improperly admitted the redacted civil contempt orders.

“We review a district court’s evidentiary rulings under a deferential abuse of discretion standard, and we will disturb an evidentiary ruling only where the decision to admit or exclude evidence was manifestly erroneous.” United States v. McGinn, 787 F.3d 116, 127 (2d Cir. 2015) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). “Under Rule 403, so long as the district court has conscientiously balanced the proffered evidence’s probative value with the risk for prejudice, its conclusion will be disturbed only if it is arbitrary or irrational.” United States v. Awadallah, 436 F.3d 125, 131 (2d Cir. 2006).

As to the settlement discussions, Brennerman argues that the district court should have allowed him to introduce certain evidence of those discussions because it showed he was acting in good faith to comply with the court’s orders. But we disagree with Brennerman’s characterization of the record. The record shows that the district court did allow Brennerman to introduce evidence concerning settlement discussions on the condition that he establish his knowledge of the substance of the exhibits and their relationship to the relevant time period. At the end of trial, the district court admitted those exhibits for which the connection was made. Also, through cross-examination, Brennerman was able to introduce evidence about the parties’ settlement discussions. In summation, defense counsel relied on that evidence to argue that Brennerman did not willfully disregard the orders. In our view, the district court did not abuse its discretion in admitting some but not all of this evidence, and Brennerman has failed to point to any specific evidence that would have helped his case had it been admitted.

Brennerman’s challenge to the district court’s exclusion of documents he turned over to ICBC in 2013 also fails. Such evidence, Brennerman argues, would have cast doubt on his willfulness on his behalf in disobeying orders, because it would have shown that he did not realize he had to re-produce documents that ICBC already possessed. But, as the district court aptly noted, the documents were evidently provided to ICBC long before the civil case began, and were only minimally response to ICBC’s discovery requests, so their production was not probative at all of Brennerman’s compliance with those discovery requests and subsequent court orders.

Finally, with respect to the admission of the redacted contempt orders, we find no error. As the district court correctly determined, the civil contempt orders were relevant to Brennerman’s willfulness. To minimize any potential prejudicial effect, the district court redacted portions of the orders and instructed the jury on the limited purposes for which it could consider the civil contempt orders in the context of a trial about criminal contempt. Thus, the district court appropriately accounted for the probative value of the evidence as well as its potentially prejudicial effect, and we cannot conclude that its decision was arbitrary, irrational, or manifestly erroneous.

III. Rule 33 Motion

Brennerman first filed a Rule 33 motion on February 14, 2018, which was denied without prejudice in the event that he were to terminate counsel and proceed pro se. Brennerman elected to proceed without counsel on February 26, and on February 28, 2018 he filed another Rule 33 motion. He then filed what he styles as an amended Rule 33 motion on March 26, 2018, also pro se. On appeal, Brennerman challenges the district court's denial of his March 26 motion as untimely.

A Rule 33 motion for a new trial on grounds other than newly discovered evidence must be filed within fourteen days after the verdict. Fed. R. Crim. P. 33(b)(2). Pursuant to Rule 45(b)(1)(B), however, this time limit may be extended if the moving party failed to act because of "excusable neglect." Fed. R. Crim. P. 45(b)(1)(B). When, as here, a defendant does not raise an argument below, we review for plain error. United States v. Alcantara, 396 F.3d 189, 207 (2d Cir. 2005.)

Brennerman concedes that his March 26 motion was untimely, but he argues excusable neglect because his counsel withdrew. We are not convinced that Brennerman's justification is sufficient for a finding of excusable neglect. Brennerman was permitted to proceed pro se on February 26 and nonetheless timely file his February 28 motion. Nor is there any allegation that the information contained in the March 26 motion was newly discovered. Accordingly, because the delay was not justified, the district court did not err—let alone plainly err—by denying the March 26 motion as untimely. In any event, the district court addressed the merits of Brennerman's motion.

IV. Sentence

Brennerman further challenges the procedural and substantive reasonableness of his sentence. A district court commits procedural error if it fails to calculate the Guidelines range, makes a mistake in its Guidelines calculation, treats the Guidelines as mandatory, does not consider the Section 3553(a) factors, or rests its sentence on a clearly erroneous finding of fact. United States v. Cavera, 550 F.3d 180, 190 (2d Cir. 2008) (en banc). Facts in support of a sentencing calculation need be established only by a preponderance of the evidence. United States v. Beverly, 5 F.3d 633, 642 (2d Cir. 1993).

In calculating Brennerman's Guidelines range, the district properly found that Brennerman's conduct "resulted in substantial interference with the administration of justice" and applied the appropriate offense level enhancement, pursuant to U.S.S.G. § 2J1.2(b)(2). Examples of "substantial interference with the administration of justice" include "the unnecessary expenditure of substantial governmental or court resources." U.S.S.G. § 2J1.2 cmt. n.1. The district court found that Brennerman lied to and withheld documents from the court, requiring the government to spend substantial time and resources in connection with his trial for criminal contempt. Accordingly, the district court's decision to impose a three-level enhancement was not an abuse of discretion.

In reviewing claims of substantive unreasonableness, we consider "the totality of the circumstances, giving due deference to the sentencing judge's exercise of discretion," and we "will . . . set aside a district court's substantive determination only in exceptional cases where the trial court's decision cannot be located within the range of permissible decisions." Cavera, 550 F.3d at 189-90 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

On the record before us, Brennerman's sentence of 24 months' imprisonment is not substantively unreasonable. The district court imposed a sentence on the low end of the Guidelines range. Indeed, Brennerman makes no argument, and cites no authority or facts, to support his claim that his conduct warranted a below-Guidelines sentence. In light of these circumstances and the deference we owe to the district court, we cannot say that the sentence falls outside the range of permissible decisions.

V. Ineffective Assistance of Counsel

Lastly, Brennerman faults his attorney for failing to obtain records from ICBC and for moving to disqualify the district court judge. We decline to address Brennerman's ineffective assistance of counsel arguments at this time.

Our Circuit has "a baseline aversion to resolving ineffectiveness claims on direct review." United States v. Khedr, 343 F.3d 96, 99 (2d Cir. 2003). Though we have exercised our discretion to address these claims when their resolution is beyond a doubt, id., we decline to do so here given the absence of a fully developed record on this issue. See Sparman v. Edwards, 154 F.3d 51, 52 (2d Cir. 1998) (explaining that, "except in highly unusual circumstances," a lawyer charged with ineffectiveness should be given "an opportunity to be heard and to present evidence, in the form of live testimony, affidavits, or briefs"). Accordingly, we dismiss Brennerman's ineffective assistance counsel claims without prejudice.

We have considered the remainder of Brennerman's arguments and find them to be without merit. Accordingly, the judgment of the district court hereby is AFFIRMED.

SUPERVISED RELEASE

Upon release from imprisonment, you will be on supervised release for a term of:

3 Years subject to the following special conditions:

The defendant shall follow all directions of the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services in any proceedings it may institute.

If the defendant is removed or deported from the United States, he shall not reenter the United States illegally.

The defendant shall provide the probation officer with any financial information he or she may request.

The defendant shall not incur new credit charges or open additional lines of credit without the approval of the probation officer.

MANDATORY CONDITIONS

1. You must not commit another federal, state or local crime.
2. You must not unlawfully possess a controlled substance.
3. You must refrain from any unlawful use of a controlled substance. You must submit to one drug test within 15 days of release from imprisonment and at least two periodic drug tests thereafter, as determined by the court.
 The above drug testing condition is suspended, based on the court's determination that you pose a low risk of future substance abuse. (check if applicable)
4. You must make restitution in accordance with 18 U.S.C. §§ 3663 and 3663A or any other statute authorizing a sentence of restitution. (check if applicable)
5. You must cooperate in the collection of DNA as directed by the probation officer. (check if applicable)
6. You must comply with the requirements of the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (34 U.S.C. § 20901, et seq.) as directed by the probation officer, the Bureau of Prisons, or any state sex offender registration agency in the location where you reside, work, are a student, or were convicted of a qualifying offense. (check if applicable)
7. You must participate in an approved program for domestic violence. (check if applicable)

You must comply with the standard conditions that have been adopted by this court as well as with any other conditions on the attached page.

DEFENDANT: RAHEEM J. BRENNERMAN
CASE NUMBER: 1:17-CR-155-001(LAK)

STANDARD CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISION

As part of your supervised release, you must comply with the following standard conditions of supervision. These conditions are imposed because they establish the basic expectations for your behavior while on supervision and identify the minimum tools needed by probation officers to keep informed, report to the court about, and bring about improvements in your conduct and condition.

1. You must report to the probation office in the federal judicial district where you are authorized to reside within 72 hours of your release from imprisonment, unless the probation officer instructs you to report to a different probation office or within a different time frame.
2. After initially reporting to the probation office, you will receive instructions from the court or the probation officer about how and when you must report to the probation officer, and you must report to the probation officer as instructed.
3. You must not knowingly leave the federal judicial district where you are authorized to reside without first getting permission from the court or the probation officer.
4. You must answer truthfully the questions asked by your probation officer.
5. You must live at a place approved by the probation officer. If you plan to change where you live or anything about your living arrangements (such as the people you live with), you must notify the probation officer at least 10 days before the change. If notifying the probation officer in advance is not possible due to unanticipated circumstances, you must notify the probation officer within 72 hours of becoming aware of a change or expected change.
6. You must allow the probation officer to visit you at any time at your home or elsewhere, and you must permit the probation officer to take any items prohibited by the conditions of your supervision that he or she observes in plain view.
7. You must work full time (at least 30 hours per week) at a lawful type of employment, unless the probation officer excuses you from doing so. If you do not have full-time employment you must try to find full-time employment, unless the probation officer excuses you from doing so. If you plan to change where you work or anything about your work (such as your position or your job responsibilities), you must notify the probation officer at least 10 days before the change. If notifying the probation officer at least 10 days in advance is not possible due to unanticipated circumstances, you must notify the probation officer within 72 hours of becoming aware of a change or expected change.
8. You must not communicate or interact with someone you know is engaged in criminal activity. If you know someone has been convicted of a felony, you must not knowingly communicate or interact with that person without first getting the permission of the probation officer.
9. If you are arrested or questioned by a law enforcement officer, you must notify the probation officer within 72 hours.
10. You must not own, possess, or have access to a firearm, ammunition, destructive device, or dangerous weapon (i.e., anything that was designed, or was modified for, the specific purpose of causing bodily injury or death to another person such as nunchakus or tasers).
11. You must not act or make any agreement with a law enforcement agency to act as a confidential human source or informant without first getting the permission of the court.
12. If the probation officer determines that you pose a risk to another person (including an organization), the probation officer may require you to notify the person about the risk and you must comply with that instruction. The probation officer may contact the person and confirm that you have notified the person about the risk.
13. You must follow the instructions of the probation officer related to the conditions of supervision.

- The defendant must pay interest on restitution and a fine of more than $2,500, unless the restitution or fine is paid in full before the fifteenth day after the date of the judgment, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3612(f). All of the payment options on Sheet 6 may be subject to penalties for delinquency and default, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3612(g).
- The court determined that the defendant does not have the ability to pay interest and it is ordered that:
 - the interest requirement is waived for the fine restitution.
 - the interest requirement for the fine restitution is modified as follows:

* Justice for Victims of Trafficking Act of 2015, Pub. L. No. 114-22.

 Findings for the total amount of losses are required under Chapters 109A, 110, 110A, and 113A of Title 18 for offenses committed on or after September 13, 1994, but before April 23, 1996.

DEFENDANT: RAHEEM J. BRENNERMAN
CASE NUMBER: 1:17-CR-155-001(LAK)

SCHEDULE OF PAYMENTS

Having assessed the defendant's ability to pay, payment of the total criminal monetary penalties is due as follows:

- A Lump sum payment of $ 10,200.00 due immediately, balance due not later than _____, or in accordance with C, D, E, or F below; or
- B Payment to begin immediately (may be combined with C, D, or F below); or
- C Payment in equal _____ (e.g., weekly, monthly, quarterly) installments of $ _____ over a period of _____ (e.g., months or years), to commence _____ (e.g., 30 or 60 days) after the date of this judgment; or
- D Payment in equal _____ (e.g., weekly, monthly, quarterly) installments of $ _____ over a period of _____ (e.g., months or years), to commence _____ (e.g., 30 or 60 days) after release from imprisonment to a term of supervision; or
- E Payment during the term of supervised release will commence within _____ (e.g., 30 or 60 days) after release from imprisonment. The court will set the payment plan based on an assessment of the defendant's ability to pay at that time; or
- F Special instructions regarding the payment of criminal monetary penalties:

Unless the court has expressly ordered otherwise, if this judgment imposes imprisonment, payment of criminal monetary penalties is due during the period of imprisonment. All criminal monetary penalties, except those payments made through the Federal Bureau of Prisons' Inmate Financial Responsibility Program, are made to the clerk of the court.

The defendant shall receive credit for all payments previously made toward any criminal monetary penalties imposed.

- Joint and Several

Defendant and Co-Defendant Names and Case Numbers (including defendant number), Total Amount, Joint and Several Amount, and corresponding payee, if appropriate.

- The defendant shall pay the cost of prosecution.
 The defendant shall pay the following court cost(s):
 The defendant shall forfeit the defendant's interest in the following property to the United States:

Payments shall be applied in the following order: (1) assessment, (2) restitution principal, (3) restitution interest, (4) fine principal, (5) fine interest, (6) community restitution, (7) JVTA assessment, (8) penalties, and (9) costs, including cost of prosecution and court costs.

Counsel for Defendant-Appellant

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Defendant-Appellant Raheem Brennerman respectfully petitions this Court under Rule 35 of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure for rehearing en banc of the panel's decision dated June 9, 2020, affirming Brennerman's conviction for criminal contempt. The panel decision on which rehearing en banc is requested, United States v. Brennerman, ---Fed. Appx.--- No. 18-1033, 2020 WL 3053867 (2d Cir. June 9, 2020) (Summary Order) is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

Brennerman argues that the full Court should rehear the case and examine the panel's decision upholding Brennerman's conviction and approving the district court's 1) admission of a civil contempt order against Brennerman; 2) failure to compel production of certain exculpatory materials; and 3) preclusion of the admission of evidence pertaining to settlement negotiations because the issues raised are questions of exceptional importance. See Watson v. Geran, 587 F.3d 156, 160 (2d Cir. 2009) (per curiam) (en banc) ("En banc review should be limited generally to only those cases that raise issues of important systemic consequences for the development of the law and the administration of justice.").

STATEMENT OF PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND PERTINENT FACTS

Brennerman relies on the statement of facts in the briefing previously filed in this case and incorporates it herein but presents the below facts that are specifically pertinent to the issue of a rehearing.

I. Blacksands Lawsuit and Civil Contempt

Brennerman was the CEO and indirect majority shareholder of Blacksands Pacific Group ("Blacksands"), a Delaware-based oil and gas development corporation. In 2015, Blacksands was sued by a London-based bank, ICBC (London) PLC ("ICBC") in connection to a $20 million, 90-day loan agreement entered into between ICBC and Blacksands' subsidiary, Blacksands Alpha Blue, LLC, in 2013. ICBC London PLC v. Blacksands Pacific Group, 15-CV-70 (LAK) (S.D.N.Y. 2015). ICBC alleged that Blacksands, the loan guarantor, never paid back $5 million withdrawn from the loan. Blacksands had maintained that the loan agreement was just one part of a larger financial arrangement between Alpha Blue and ICBC and that the principal of the loan was supposed to roll over into a 5-year, $70 million revolving credit facility. The district court granted ICBC's motion for summary judgment in lieu of a complaint and a judgment was entered against Blacksands. ICBC London PLC v. Blacksands Pacific Group, 15-CV-70 (LAK) (S.D.N.Y. 2015) at Dkt. #39.

As part of post-judgment discovery in an effort to locate the company's assets, ICBC served requests and interrogatories on Blacksands on March 24, 2016. Blacksands objected and ICBC filed a motion to compel, which was granted by the district court on August 22, 2016 (the "First Order"). The Order directed Blacksands to comply with all discovery requests within 14 days of the Order. Id. at Dkt. #87. Blacksands and ICBC were actively engaged in settlement negotiations at this time, so on September 6, 2016, the deadline of compliance with the First Order, Blacksands' counsel alerted the district court in writing that it had agreed to pay the monetary judgment pending appeal. In anticipation of the payment, ICBC did not immediately seek Blacksands' compliance with the First Order. The district court held two conferences to determine the owed judgment. At the conclusion of the second conference, however, on September 27, 2016, the Court entered an Order (the "Second Order") that Blacksands must either settle or comply with the discovery requests on or before October 3, 2016. It warned that failure to comply might result in the imposition of sanctions as well as civil contempt. Id. at Dkt. #92.

The parties failed to reach a settlement and Blacksands failed to comply with the Second Order's discovery request so ICBC filed a motion to hold Blacksands. On October 20, 2016, the district court held Blacksands in civil contempt. The Court did not elect to commence criminal proceedings, but notified the parties that it would refer the matter to the United States Attorney's Office to consider whether to pursue criminal charges against Blacksands as well as Brennerman, the corporation's principal and non-party. ICBC expressed an intention to initiate civil contempt proceedings against Brennerman.

In November 2016, Brennerman and Blacksands provided substantial document production to ICBC. Despite this production, on December 7, 2016, ICBC moved by order to show cause to hold Brennerman in civil contempt. Id. at Dkt. #121. On December 13, 2016, a hearing was held outside the presence of Brennerman and counsel, which found Brennerman in civil contempt. Id. at Dkt. 139.

II. Criminal Trial of Raheem Brennerman

Subsequently, Brennerman was indicted for criminal contempt in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 401(3). See United States v. The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc., 17-CR-155 (LAK). In preparation for trial and in support of his defense that he did not willfully disobey court orders but rather was negotiating a settlement with ICBC, Brennerman subpoenaed ICBC for all documents related to Blacksands as well as any communications between ICBC and the Department of Justice. ICBC did not comply. Brennerman filed a motion to compel which was denied on the bases that the subpoena was unenforceable against a foreign bank, ICBC had not been served, and that the documents were already in defendants' possession. The trial commenced on September 6, 2017 and concluded on September 12, 2017, when a jury returned a guilty verdict for two counts of criminal contempt.

III. Appeal of Conviction

Brennerman filed a pro se brief with this Court appealing his conviction. Undersigned counsel was appointed to represent Brennerman in connection with the filing of a supplemental reply brief and for oral argument. On May 27, 2020, this Court held telephonic oral argument and on June 9, 2020 issued a summary order denying Brennerman's appeal. See United States v. Brennerman, ---Fed. Appx.--- No. 18-1033, 2020 WL 3053867 (2d Cir. June 9, 2020).

This Court found that the district court did not err in its failure to compel ICBC's production of its entire file because Brennerman did not comply with the rules governing subpoenas under Rule 17(d) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure when he served ICBC's New York-based attorney, not the ICBC's London branch. Id. at *1. The Court further concluded that, "the prosecution was under no obligation to make efforts to obtain information beyond what it previously collected and turned over to Brennerman." Id.

As to the evidence concerning settlement discussions, this Court found that the district court had allowed Brennerman "to introduce evidence concerning settlement discussions on the condition that he establish his knowledge of the substance of the exhibits and their relationship to the relevant time period..." and that "through cross-examination, Brennerman was able to introduce evidence about the parties' settlement discussions." Id. at *2. This Court found that "the district court did not abuse its discretion in admitting some but not all of this evidence, and Brennerman has failed to point to any specific evidence that would have helped his case had it been admitted." Id.

In regard to the admission of the civil contempt order against Brennerman, this Court found that "the district court correctly determined, the civil contempt orders were relevant to Brennerman's willfulness. To minimize any potential prejudicial effect, the district court redacted portions of the orders and instructed the jury on the limited purposes for which it could consider the civil contempt orders in the context of a trial about criminal contempt.” Id.

REASONS FOR GRANTING EN BANC RECONSIDERATION

I. Applicable Law

Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 35(a) provides that an en banc rehearing “will not be ordered unless (1) en banc consideration is necessary to secure or maintain uniformity of the court’s decisions; or (2) the proceeding involves a question of exceptional importance.” Fed.R.App.P. 35(a). “En banc review should be limited generally to only those cases that raise issues of important systemic consequences for the development of the law and the administration of justice.” Watson v. Geren, 587 F.3d 156, 160 (2d Cir. 2009) (per curiam) (en banc).

II. Discussion

A. Failure to Compel ICBC Production

Brennerman’s central argument concerning the ICBC production requests is that there existed exculpatory materials that were not provided to him and could not otherwise be compelled due to Rule 17 limitations regarding foreign entities. This Court did not address Brennerman’s arguments that, if the government claimed that it had produced all documents in its possession but the omission of the entire file was glaringly obvious, then it follows that the government was aware that relevant information existed and was, therefore, withholding material that it could (and should) have obtained, in violation of Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963).

Because Brennerman was effectively barred from obtaining relevant evidence, such as the entirety of his communications with ICBC representatives, due to subpoena constraints, he was denied the opportunity to put forth a complete defense.

Because no meaningful inquiry was conducted, either at the district court or before this Court, concerning the discrepancies between the government's representations that the production was complete and the obviously incomplete materials produced, the issue of whether Brady obligations were flouted by the government remains open. The sanctity of Brady obligations cannot be interpreted as anything less than a question of exceptional importance warranting rehearing en banc to permit further reconsideration on this point.

B. Failure to Permit Full Settlement Negotiation Evidence

Without the entire ICBC file, Brennerman was precluded from presenting evidence regarding settlement negotiations between Blacksands and ICBC. Brennerman posits that evidence of these negotiations would have convinced the jury that he had not willfully disobeyed any court orders.

Although Brennerman was permitted certain lines of questioning concerning settlement negotiations, the admitted evidence was woefully inadequate to set forth his complete defense. Brennerman was attempting to elicit evidence of settlement discussions with agents of ICBC that, he argued, would have demonstrated that he was not willfully disobeying the district court's discovery orders but was instead prioritizing settlement with ICBC over his discovery obligations. This evidence was not permitted, could not be elicited through cross-examination of witnesses, and was not a part of the jury instructions. See United States v. The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc., 17-CR-155 (LAK) Tr. 236-277. Although such evidence was plainly relevant to the issue of Brennerman's willfulness in failing to comply with the court's discovery orders, the record was devoid of the precise evidence that would have demonstrated the defendant's lack and intent. The district court exacerbated the harm by instructing the jury that settlement discussions in a civil case did not excuse a defendant's failure to comply with the court's discovery order absent an order suspending or modifying the requirement to comply. Tr. 509-510; 538-544.

The limitation on evidence of settlement negotiations was not merely an evidentiary issue, but rather, a constitutional one which violated Brennerman's right to present a defense. The violation was compounded by the fact that the district court essentially eviscerated the element of intent in determining whether Brennerman was guilty of criminal contempt. The panel's decision failed to address the manner in which the district court's evidentiary rulings precluded Brennerman's right to present a complete defense and rehearing en banc is warranted to permit a full examination of this point.

C. Admission of the Civil Contempt Order

The question of whether the civil contempt order was improperly admitted against Brennerman goes beyond a simple analysis of Rules 403 and 404(b) of the Federal Rules of Evidence. Brennerman was a non-party in the civil lawsuit at the time of the order. Because the order was erroneously adjudged against him, its erroneous admission had more serious legal implications, above and beyond an abuse of discretion analysis.

This Court has previously held that "because the power of a district court to impose contempt liability is carefully limited, our review of a contempt order for abuse of discretion is more rigorous than would be the case in other situations in which abuse-of-discretion review is conducted." Hester Indus., Inc. v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 160 F.3d 911, 916 (2d Cir. 1998). "Moreover, we think it is fundamentally unfair to hold [a non-party] in contempt as if he were a party without sufficient legal support for treating him, a non-party, as a party but only for the purposes of discovery." OSRecovery, Inc. v. One Groupe Int'l, Inc., 462 F.3d 87, 94 (2d Cir. 2006). In OSRecovery, this Court had found that the district court abused its discretion by holding a person “in contempt as a party without sufficient explanation or citation to legal authority supporting the bases upon which the court relied in treating [him] as a party—for discovery purposes only—despite the fact that [he] was not actually a party.” Id. at 93.

Here Judge Lewis A. Kaplan (the same district court judge whose contempt order this Court found inappropriate in OSRecovery) held Brennerman in civil contempt as a non-party and failed to provide any legal authority or present any particular theory for treating him as a party solely for the purpose of discovery. See ICBC London PLC v. Blacksands Pacific Group, 15-CV-70 (LAK) (S.D.N.Y. 2015) at Dkt. #139-140. No court orders, subpoenas, or motions to compel were ever directed at Brennerman personally nor was he present during the civil case’s various proceedings.

The erroneous admission of the civil contempt order was more than an evidentiary error. It violated this Court’s instructions concerning contempt orders against non-parties. To affirm the district court’s rulings would create a disparity with this Court’s treatment and review of such orders and would place exceptional burdens on non-parties. Therefore, the Court should rehear the case en banc to reconsider this issue.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant Brennerman’s request for rehearing en banc.

~~PROPOSED ORDER OF

Plaintiff ICBC (London) plc's motion [ECF 125] seeking an Order holding Raheem Brennerman in civil contempt of court and imposing coercive sanctions against him is granted. [Except that] The Court reserves decision on the portion of ICBC's motion requesting an award of compensatory damages.

Having considered the papers submitted by ICBC, Mr. Brennerman having failed to file any papers in opposition, and the Court having heard oral argument, the Court finds that (1) its orders of August 22, 2016 and September 27, 2016 compelling Defendant The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc. ("Blacksands") to fully comply with ICBC's post-judgment discovery requests (the "Outstanding Discovery Orders") are clear and unambiguous, (2) the proof of Blacksands' willful noncompliance with the Outstanding Discovery Orders is undisputed, clear and convincing, (3) Blacksands has not diligently attempted to comply with those orders in a reasonable manner, and (4) Mr. Brennerman is properly charged with contempt because he has abetted and directed Blacksands' noncompliance with the Outstanding Discovery Orders and because he is legally identified with Blacksands. The Court therefore ORDERS that:

1. Mr. Brennerman shall pay a coercive fine of $1,500 per day, commencing December 13, 2016, for each day in which Blacksands continues to fail to comply with the Outstanding Discovery Orders. The amount of the coercive fine will double every seventh day until it reaches $100,000 per day, and it will thereafter continue at the rate of $100,000 per day, unless otherwise ordered by this Court.
2. If Mr. Brennerman and Blacksands comply fully with the Outstanding Discovery Orders, the judgment is satisfied, or at least $3 million cash is paid on account of the judgment, in each case by 5:00 p.m. New York time on December 20, 2016, the Court will abrogate the coercive fines imposed on Mr. Brennerman and incurred through that date; provided, that such production or payment shall not moot the contempt that has been committed.
3. Upon application by the Plaintiff, the Court will consider the imposition of further sanctions, if there is an adequate showing that those imposed by this Order do not achieve compliance. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, ICBC is at liberty to commence by appropriate process further civil and/or criminal contempt proceedings against Mr. Brennerman and anyone else who is properly chargeable with contempt in this matter.
4. The substance of this order was issued orally on December 13, 2016.

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

LEWIS A. KAPLAN, District Judge.

On December 12, 2016, this Court denied an ex parte application by Raheem Brennerman for an extension of time within which to resist a motion to hold him in civil contempt and impose sanctions on him. This memorandum and order explains that decision.

The Background

ICBC (London) plc (“ICBC”), The Blacksands Pacific Group, Inc. (“Blacksands”), and counterclaimant Blacksands Pacific Alpha Blue, LLC (“Alpha Blue”), a Blacksands subsidiary, entered into a bridge loan agreement (“BLA”) on November 25, 2013.¹ Under the BLA, ICBC provided a $20 million, 90-day loan to Alpha Blue, which Blacksands absolutely and unconditionally guaranteed.² Of the available $20 million, Alpha Blue withdrew $5 million.³

Neither Alpha Blue, as primary obligor, nor Blacksands, as guarantor, repaid the amount owed when it matured in February 2014.⁴ ICBC extended the deadline for repayment of principal on two occasions, first to March 31, 2014, and later to July 31, 2014, while still collecting interest payments.⁵ After each of these deadlines was missed, however, ICBC sent a notice of default to Blacksands.⁶

On or about December 8, 2014, plaintiff ICBC commenced this action in the New York Supreme Court against defendant Blacksands to recover $5 million plus interest and attorneys' fees of nearly $400,000 on Blacksands' guarantee of the obligations of Alpha Blue under the BLA. Under New York procedure, ICBC moved for summary judgment in lieu of a complaint.⁷ Blacksands promptly removed the case to this Court and, in due course, both Blacksands and Alpha Blue filed counterclaims against ICBC.⁸

By order dated September 29, 2015, this Court granted ICBC's motion for summary judgment on its claim on Blacksands' guarantee and granted in substantial part its motion to dismiss the counterclaims.⁹ It also granted a Rule 54(b) certificate with respect to ICBC's claim against Blacksands. The Clerk then entered judgment in favor of ICBC and against Blacksands.

ICBC (London) plc v. Blacksands Pacific Grp., Inc., 2015 WL 5710947 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 29, 2015).

Blacksands appealed. As no supersedeas bond or other security was posted, however, ICBC began post-judgment discovery in an effort to locate assets that might be used to satisfy the judgment, serving document requests and interrogatories on or about March 24, 2016.¹⁰

Blacksands initially stonewalled the discovery requests, interposing frivolous objections. ICBC then moved to compel responses. The Court granted the motion and, on August 22, 2016, directed Blacksands to respond in full within fourteen days after the date of the order.¹¹

On September 6, 2016, the day Blacksands was obliged to comply with the August 22, 2016 order (the "First Order"), Blacksands' counsel wrote to the Court and claimed that Blacksands had "agree[d]" to pay the judgment "pending its appeal" and purportedly requested the Court's assistance in determining the amount due under the judgment.¹² In reliance on the apparent commitment to pay, ICBC did not immediately seek further relief with respect to compliance with the First Order. The Court, at Blacksands' request, then held two conferences with counsel in what was said by Blacksands to be an effort to determine the amount owing.¹³ On September 27, 2016, however, at the conclusion of the second conference, the Court entered the following order (the "Second Order"):

"On August 22, 2016, this Court directed defendant to comply fully with certain outstanding discovery requests within fourteen days. It has not complied with that order.

"Unless the case is fully and definitively settled on or before October 3, 2016, defendant shall comply fully with those discovery requests no later than 4 p.m. on that date. Any failure to comply with this order may result in the imposition of sanctions, including those associated with contempt of court, as well as in the imposition of coercive sanctions and other relief for civil contempt."¹⁴

No settlement was reached. Accordingly, Blacksands became obligated under the Second Order to comply fully with ICBC's discovery requests by 4 p.m. on October 3, 2016. It

The Contempt Adjudication as to Blacksands and the Contempt Application as to Brennerman

Blacksands

On October 13, 2016, ICBC moved to hold Blacksands in contempt. No opposition was filed. On October 20, 2016, the Court held Blacksands in civil contempt and imposed coercive sanctions on it. In addition, the written order entered on October 24, 2016 [DI 108] reiterated the Court's prior warning¹⁷ that Blacksands' principal, Raheem Brennerman, would be at risk of contempt proceedings directed at him personally in the event full compliance was not forthcoming:

"Upon application by the Plaintiff, the Court will consider the imposition of further sanctions, if there is an adequate showing that those imposed by this Order do not achieve compliance. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, ICBC is at liberty to commence by appropriate process civil and/or criminal contempt proceedings against Raheem Brennerman and anyone else who is properly chargeable with contempt in this matter."

Brennerman

On December 7, 2016, ICBC—based on a reasonably documented assertion that Brennerman “controls every aspect of Blacksands’ existence and operation,” is “legally identified” with it, and “has directed its continuing contempt of Court”¹⁸—moved by order to show cause to

The Ex Parte Application

At 6:34 a.m. on Sunday, December 10, 2016, Brennerman sent an email to the Court's deputy clerk at his court email address.²⁴ The email is headed PRIVILEGED & CONFIDENTIAL CORRESPONDENCE. Although it indicates that copies were sent to lawyers at Latham, it bears no indication that copies were sent to ICBC's counsel despite the fact that Brennerman knows their email addresses.

Attached to the email was a letter purportedly by Brennerman to the undersigned.²⁵ The first two paragraphs requested more time to respond to the contempt motion, stated that Brennerman's choice of counsel to represent him in this matter was Paul Weiss which was unable to represent him on this matter, and stated that Brennerman was "in the process of engaging new personal counsel." Attached to the letter were copies of two emails with respect to his purported attempt to retain Paul Weiss and a very long settlement proposal with respect to the ICBC dispute. There was no indication that the letter and emails were sent to ICBC's counsel. At a December 13

Discussion

The rules authorize extensions of time within which acts may be done on a showing of good cause where, as here, the extension is sought in advance of the deadline.²⁶ Extensions usually will be granted "unless the moving party has been negligent, lacked diligence, acted in bad faith, or abused the privilege of prior extensions."²⁷ And while the rules do not explicitly require that notice be given of such applications, "[i]t is prudent course . . . is always to file a motion that complies with Rule 7(b) when requesting an extension of a time period."²⁸ which among other things requires service on the opposing party. In any case, such applications lie within the broad discretion of the district court.²⁹ The Court here considers the relevant factors to be these:

1. This application was made ex parte. The fact that Brennerman wrote his letter pro se gives no excuse for his failure to give notice to ICBC's counsel, as he copied lawyers at Latham, which ostensibly does not represent Brennerman personally.

2. The history of this matter gives little comfort that this application—extraordinary in at least because of its ex parte letter and its explication of a purported settlement offer that evidently has not been communicated to the opposing party—is anything other than an attempt to delay matters. Among the indications are these:

Brennerman was warned on October 20, 2016 that he faced the possibility of an attempt to hold him personally in contempt of court if Blacksands did not fully comply with the First and Second Orders.³⁰ Brennerman evidently controls Blacksands and therefore presumably knew that Blacksands would not comply. He therefore has known for almost two months that he was extremely likely to face a contempt proceeding. Circumstances do not lend a great deal of credibility to the notion that he first sought to obtain personal counsel in that regard on December 9.

Brennerman has advanced no reason to think that Latham, which has been in this case since the fall of 2015 on behalf of Blacksands, could not represent him personally.

This is the third and, depending on one's interpretation of the record, perhaps the fourth, instance in this case in which Brennerman has sought an unspecified delay, ostensibly to retain counsel.

Brennerman delayed retaining counsel to represent Blacksands in this case despite the fact that he had engaged in extended pre-suit correspondence with plaintiff in which plaintiff made clear that it would sue unless Blacksands paid its debt to ICBC. Counsel did not appear on Blacksands' behalf until January 7, 2015, nearly a month after the action commenced, and they immediately sought a 30-day extension of time on the ground that they were "only retained . . . last week."³¹

After Blacksands' first attorneys were granted leave to withdraw on September 18, 2015, new counsel—Latham—did not appear until November 20, 2015.³² Latham then promptly sought an extension of time within which to cure a default on a motion by a belated filing.

Almost immediately after entry of the Second Order and on the day on which the first contempt motion was made, Latham sought to withdraw. The motion was made with Brennerman's consent and ostensibly on the basis that "the only remaining issues relat[e] to Blacksands' counterclaim and Plaintiff's enforcement of the judgment."³³ But the withdrawal, had it been permitted, would have left Blacksands unrepresented. Whatever may have been in Latham's mind, Brennerman's consent to its withdrawal would have been consistent with an intention on his part to leave an unrepresented corporate entity to face the contempt proceeding that either had begun or obviously was imminent and with a further excuse for a delay to find new counsel.

3. ICBC asserts that events have been and are in train that have resulted, or may result, in assets being placed beyond its reach.³⁴ Moreover, Brennerman's email to a lawyer at Paul Weiss enclosed a proposal—not submitted to the Court—for a reorganization of "Blacksands Pacific Group + Personal Re-Organization."³⁵ The risk of prejudice to ICBC in consequence of further delay is palpable.

4. Finally, the entire purpose of these civil contempt proceedings has been to coerce compliance with the First and Second Order, which do no more than require full and complete responses to the document requests and interrogatories ICBC served in March 2016, approaching a year ago. It thus has been open to Brennerman for that entire period to eliminate the reason for civil contempt proceedings by producing the discovery. The fact that he has not caused Blacksands to do so despite court orders compelling that action has been in bad faith throughout and remains so.

The Disposition of the Contempt Motion Against Brennerman

No appearance was filed and neither Brennerman nor any attorney for Brennerman appeared at the December 13 hearing. The Court held Brennerman in civil contempt and imposed coercive fines on him for each day during which Blacksands continued in its failure fully to comply with the First and Second Orders. It reserved decision on ICBC's request for compensatory damages and attorneys fees.³⁶ Moreover, the Court made clear if Blacksands complied with the orders, paid the judgment, or paid at least $3 million on account of the judgment on or before December 20, 2016, the Court would abrogate any coercive fines against Brennerman that accrued from December 13, 2016 to and including the date of compliance or payment. It indicated also that if Brennerman on or before December 20, 2016 submitted any papers in opposition to the contempt motion directed at him, the Court would determine whether to consider them despite their lateness and reserved the right to reopen the contempt proceeding with respect to Brennerman.

Conclusion

It long has been said that a person jailed for civil contempt holds the keys to the jail in his or her pocket. All that needs to be done to gain release is to do what the Court has ordered. That is true here, albeit not in a strictly literal sense. Brennerman need only see to it that Blacksands complies with the orders to moot or reduce the civil contempt issue. His failure to do so, and hence his application for yet more time to avoid coercive personal sanctions, is bad faith conduct.

The Court concludes also that Brennerman's ex parte application was made without notice to ICBC in the hope that the Court would act favorably on his application without benefit of ICBC's input. ICBC was and remains at significant risk of being further prejudiced by delay as Brennerman proceeds, or may proceed, with various steps that may make collection of its judgment even more difficult. Brennerman has articulated no reason why Latham, which has long been in this case, could not represent him on the personal contempt application. And even if there were some issue, or if Brennerman simply would prefer other counsel, he has been on notice of the likelihood of this application since October 20, 2016 and thus has had ample time within which to arrange representation.

In all the circumstances, the Court declined to adjourn the contempt hearing scheduled for December 13, 2016. It declined also to extend the time within which Brennerman was obliged to submit any responsive papers. In the event he files responsive papers before the Court decides the motion, the Court will determine whether it will consider them despite the fact that they will have been filed out of time. Should Brennerman submit such untimely papers, he would be well advised to respond to all of the concerns articulated in this memorandum.

Franklin B. Velie, Sullivan Worcester LLP, New York, N.Y. (Richard Verner, on the brief), for Appellant.

Lawrence W. Newman, Baker McKenzie LLP, New York, N.Y. (Scott C. Hutchins, on the brief), for Defendants-Appellees.

Before CARDAMONE, CALABRESI, POOLER, Circuit Judges.

POOLER, Circuit Judge.

Appellant Gray Clare appeals from an August 3, 2005, order of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (Kaplan, J.) holding him in contempt of court. See OSRecovery, Inc. v. One Groupe Int'l, Inc., No. 02 Civ. 8993(LAK), 2005 WL 1828736, *2, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, *5 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 3, 2005). The court issued the order in response to a motion from defendant-appellee, Latvian Economic Commercial Bank ("Lateko"), requesting that the court hold Clare in contempt for his failure to comply with a January 13, 2005, order compelling Clare to respond to Lateko's discovery requests. See id. 2005 WL 1828736 at *1, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *1-2. The January 13, 2005, order instructed Clare to respond to all of Lateko's requests, including document requests annexed to Clare's Notice of Deposition, requests for production, and interrogatories. Clare objects to these requests, the January 13, 2005, order compelling discovery, and the contempt order on the basis that he is not a party to the underlying litigation, and he was not subpoenaed as a non-party. Id. 2005 WL 1828736, at *1, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at * *2-3.

All parties have agreed and asserted to this Court that Clare is not actually a party. The district court, while also acknowledging Clare's non-party status, treated Clare as a party — but only for discovery purposes — by using two theoretical devices: estoppel and party by proxy.

We first hold that we have jurisdiction over the instant appeal because it is "final" within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 1291. Although appeals from civil contempt orders *90 issued against parties are not "final" and thus not immediately appealable, such appeals by non-parties are "final." See Int'l Bus. Machs. Corp. v. United States, 493 F.2d 112, 114-15 n. 1 (2d Cir. 1973). Because Clare is in fact a non-party, the appeal from his contempt order is properly appealable at this juncture.

We next hold that the district court abused its discretion by issuing a contempt order to a non-party for failing to respond to discovery requests propounded to him as a party without providing sufficient legal authority or explanation for treating him as a party solely for the purposes of discovery. Non-parties are entitled to certain discovery procedures, such as receiving a subpoena, before they are compelled to produce documents. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 34(c); Fed.R.Civ.P. 45. The district court, however, permitted Lateko to treat Clare as a party, thereby eliminating some of the procedural protections that would have been afforded to Clare had he been dealt with as a non-party. We offer no opinion on whether the district court's theories for proceeding in this manner were appropriate in the instant case because we find that the contempt order applying these theories did not lend itself to meaningful review by this Court and therefore must be vacated solely on that basis.

We therefore vacate the order of the district court holding Clare in contempt of court and remand the case to the district court for further proceedings in accordance with this decision.

BACKGROUND

OSRecovery, Inc. and a number of plaintiffs who have been referred to as numbered "Doe" plaintiffs throughout the litigation (collectively, "plaintiffs") brought suit against defendants, including Lateko, for, inter alia, violations of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq., alleging that defendants were engaged in a Ponzi scheme to defraud investors. The Doe plaintiffs' identities were kept under seal and confidential, so that neither Lateko — nor the district court at one point — knew which individuals were Doe plaintiffs. It is this unusual circumstance that created much of the confusion that gave rise to the instant appeal.

At the time the action was filed, Clare was president of OSRecovery, a corporation formed for the purposes of bringing the underlying action. Clare was also the sole shareholder of OSRecovery. He was not, however, a plaintiff individually named in the action, and, as ultimately became apparent, he was not one of the Doe plaintiffs either.

Because the identities of the Doe plaintiffs were unknown to the district court and to Lateko, much confusion arose regarding whether Clare was actually one of the Doe plaintiffs. This confusion created issues during discovery regarding the appropriate procedure for propounding discovery requests to Clare. Clare contributed to this confusion by initially referring to himself as a plaintiff. For instance, in a letter sent to the district court and dated May 28, 2004, plaintiffs' counsel requested that the court take action on behalf of "one of the Plaintiffs, the President of OSRecovery, Inc. — Gray Clare."

In Clare's brief, he argues that he initially referred to himself as a plaintiff because he was attempting to become one, but his efforts were rejected by the district court. According to Clare, a motion was filed on April 15, 2004, to amend the complaint, which would have, inter alia, added Clare as one of the Doe plaintiffs. But, on May 17, 2004, the district court denied the motion to amend the complaint. Clare suggests that it was at this point that he ⁹¹ realized he would not have an opportunity to become a plaintiff. Despite this supposed realization, however, on May 28, 2004 — nearly two weeks after the court's denial order — plaintiffs' counsel sent the letter to the court in which Clare was characterized as "one of the Plaintiffs."

Allegedly unsure of Clare's party status, Lateko propounded numerous discovery requests to Clare as if he were a plaintiff. OSRecovery and the Doe plaintiffs objected to these requests on Clare's behalf. Notably, their objections did not include a claim that the requests were not properly propounded to Clare under the rules pertaining to non-parties. Clare concedes that plaintiffs' counsel erred in neglecting to raise his status as an objection, but he claims that this omission occurred because counsel anticipated that Clare would ultimately become a plaintiff, given that the motion to amend the complaint to add Clare as a plaintiff had not yet been rejected at this point.

On January 13, 2005, the district court issued an order compelling Clare to respond in full to Lateko's discovery requests by answering the interrogatories and turning over the requested documents, and on February 8, 2005, the court denied Clare's motion to reconsider its decision. In its order denying Clare's motion for reconsideration, the court addressed Clare's contention that he was not a party to the underlying litigation. The court explained that "[w]hile it appears that all now agree that Gray Clare is not in fact a plaintiff in this case . . . the fact remains that his attorneys repeatedly referred to him as a plaintiff and Lateko relied upon those references in the unique circumstances here, in which the names of the individual plaintiffs have been filed under seal." Because of this, the court determined that Clare "[was] estopped to deny, at least for the purposes of amenability to party discovery, that he is a plaintiff." The court rejected Clare's argument that counsel had referred to Clare as a plaintiff because there was confusion over whether he was one. According to the court, plaintiffs' counsel, who were also Clare's counsel, plainly knew who their clients were.

Subsequently, Lateko filed a motion for summary judgment dismissing plaintiffs' complaint. On August 1, 2005, the district court partially granted Lateko's summary judgment motion, dismissing some of the Doe plaintiffs and OSRecovery from the litigation. With OSRecovery no longer a plaintiff, the only plaintiffs remaining were the Doe plaintiffs who were not dismissed from the lawsuit upon the court's grant of Lateko's summary judgment motion.

Maintaining that he was not a party, Clare continued to refuse to comply with the January 13, 2005, order compelling his response to discovery, and on August 3, 2005, the district court issued an order holding Clare in contempt. See OSRecovery, Inc., No. 02 Civ. 8993(LAK), 2005 WL 1828736, at *2, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *5-6. The order decrees that Gray shall be fined $2,500 for each day, commencing on August 12, 2005, that he fails to comply with the January 13, 2005, order. Id. 2005 WL 1828736, at *2 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *5. It also directs that "Clare be arrested wherever in the United States and its possessions he may be found, transported to an appropriate detention facility in [the] district, and there held pending further order of [the district court], which will be forthcoming when [Clare] demonstrates that he has complied fully with the January 13, 2005 order." Id. (internal citation omitted).

In the order, the court addresses Clare's contention that he is not a party to the underlying litigation and therefore should not be compelled to respond to the discovery requests. See id. 2005 WL 1828736, at *1, 2005

92 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *3. *92 The court, again rejecting this argument, maintains its position that Clare is estopped to deny, for discovery purposes, that he is not a party. Id. Additionally, the court finds that Clare should be treated as a party because "OSRecovery is nothing more than a front for Clare, who entirely dominates and controls it." Id. Thus, according to the court, Clare is a party as OSRecovery's proxy. Id. 2005 WL 1828736, at *1, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *3-4.

Subsequently, Clare filed a motion in this Court seeking a stay of the contempt order pending his appeal.¹ During the hearing on this motion, Clare persisted in his position that he has never been a party to the underlying litigation, arguing that "[everybody agrees [Clare] was not a party." Lateko's counsel concurred, stating that he did not think there was a doubt about it: "[Clare] is, in fact, a third-party," and "[there is] a final order with respect to him." Both Clare and Lateko also agreed that "[Clare] never received a subpoena." This Court then sought affirmation from both parties that everyone was in agreement that Clare is in fact a non-party. Again, Lateko's counsel affirmed that "[both sides] are in agreement on that, yes." The motions panel granted a stay, and we heard argument on May 16, 2006.

DISCUSSION

I. Jurisdiction

We have jurisdiction to review "final" decisions of the district courts of the United States pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1291. In general, an order of civil contempt² is not "final" within the meaning of Section 1291 but is interlocutory and therefore may not be appealed until the entry of a final judgment in the underlying litigation. Int'l Bus. Machs. Corp., 493 F.2d at 114-15. "Exceptions to this rule are rare, but where they occur it is because the interlocutory nature of the order is no longer present. Hence, civil contempts against non-parties are immediately appealable because the appeal does not interfere with the orderly progress of the main case." Id. at 115 n. 1 (emphasis added). However, civil contempt orders against parties are interlocutory and therefore not immediately appealable. Rather, they must await the termination of the underlying litigation. See In re von Bulow, 828 F.2d 94, 98 (2d Cir. 1987).

² It is not disputed that the district court's order was a civil contempt order rather than a criminal contempt order, and this is indeed correct. A civil contempt order is remedial in nature while a criminal contempt order is punitive. Int'l Bus. Machs. Corp., 493 F.2d at 115. A civil contempt order is also contingent and coercive. Id. Just because a contempt order includes a large fine and/or prison term does not render the order criminal. Id. at 115-16. An order that imposes sanctions on a party for each day she disobeys the court's discovery order is a civil contempt order. See id. This is precisely the type of order at issue in the instant case.

Clare's status in the underlying litigation is therefore critical to whether we have jurisdiction over this appeal at this juncture. If he is a party, we may not now entertain his appeal, but if he is not a party, we may. As the district court recognized, and all parties have agreed, Clare is in fact not a party to the underlying litigation. Even the district court, who treated Clare as a party for the limited purposes of discovery, did not deem Clare a party for all purposes; thus, it is clear that Clare is not actually a party to the underlying litigation, and the contempt order *93 is "final," 28 U.S.C. § 1291. We therefore have jurisdiction over his appeal.

II. The Contempt Order

We review a finding of contempt for abuse of discretion. Hester Indus., Inc. v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 160 F.3d 911, 915 (2d Cir. 1998). "We have held, however, that because the power of a district court to impose contempt liability is carefully limited, our review of a contempt order for abuse of discretion is more rigorous than would be the case in other situations in which abuse-of-discretion review is conducted." Id. at 916 (internal quotation marks omitted). We find that the district court abused its discretion by holding Clare in contempt as a party without sufficient explanation or citation to legal authority supporting the bases upon which the court relied in treating Clare as a party — for discovery purposes only — despite the fact that Clare was not actually a party.

The contempt order relies on two theories for treating Clare as a party: a party-by-estoppel theory and a party-by-proxy, or alter-ego, theory. See OSRecovery, Inc., No. 02 Civ. 8993(LAK), 2005 WL 1828736, at *1, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *3-4. The contempt order, however, does not provide citation to legal support for applying either theory in this context. In particular, the order does not explain how Clare could be transformed into a party for discovery purposes but not for any other aspect of the litigation. See id. Additionally, the order does not provide enough information on the precise legal theories it is attempting to invoke. For instance, the order states merely that Clare is "estopped" to deny that he is a party for discovery purposes. See id. 2005 WL 1828736, at *1, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *3. However, there are numerous types of estoppel, including, inter alia, judicial and equitable estoppel, to which the district court may have been referring. See Bates v. Long Island R.R. Co., 997 F.2d 1028, 1037-38 (2d Cir. 1993) (stating the differences between judicial and equitable estoppel).³ The order also states simply that Clare should be treated as a party because he has acted as OSRecovery's proxy, but it does not explain what party-by-proxy theory it is invoking. See OSRecovery, Inc., No. 02 Civ. 8993(LAK), 2005 WL 1828736, at *1, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15699, at *3-4. From the court's brief statements, we are unable to discern, for example, whether the proxy theory to which it is referring is something more ⁹⁴ akin to "piercing the corporate veil," see, e.g., Am. Fuel Corp. v. Utah Energy Dev. Co., 122 F.3d 130, 134 (2d Cir. 1997) ("Typically, piercing analysis is used to hold individuals liable for the actions of a corporation they control."), or to treating someone as a "controlling person" under the Securities laws, see, e.g., SEC v. First Jersey Sec., Inc., 101 F.3d 1450, 1472-73 (2d Cir. 1996) (explaining that controlling-person liability may attach if there is proof of both a violation by the controlled person and control of the primary violator by the defendant).

Unlike judicial estoppel, which is designed to protect the integrity of the judicial process, equitable estoppel ensures the fairness between the parties. Bates, 997 F.2d at 1037. Equitable estoppel is proper where the enforcement rights of one party would create injustice to the other party who has justifiably relied on the words or conduct of the party against whom estoppel is sought. Kosakow v. New Rochelle Radiology Assocs., 274 F.3d 706, 725 (2d Cir. 2001). According to federal law, "a party may be estopped from pursuing a claim or defense where: 1) the party to be estopped makes a misrepresentation of fact to the other party with reason to believe that the other party will rely on it; 2) and the other party reasonably relies upon it; 3) to her detriment." Id.

It is unclear, however, which estoppel and which party-by-proxy theory the court applied because the contempt order does not specify.⁴ Nor does the January 13, 2005, order compelling Clare's compliance with the discovery requests shed any light on this issue. That order merely states that it grants Lateko's motion to compel discovery, but it does not provide a rationale for treating Clare as a party, especially in light of the peculiar circumstance of treating him as a party for this limited purpose only.⁵

Although we review the district court's order for abuse of discretion, "[r]evievable-for-abuse-of-discretion does not mean unreviewable." In re Mazzeo, 167 F.3d 139, 142 (2d Cir. 1999); see also Jones v. UNUM Life Ins. Co. of Am., 223 F.3d 130,138 (2d Cir. 2000). The lower court's findings of fact and conclusions of law must be sufficient to permit meaningful review, "and where such findings and conclusions are lacking, we may vacate and remand." In re Mazzeo, 167 F.3d at 142. Moreover, we think it is fundamentally unfair to hold Clare in contempt as if he were a party without sufficient legal support for treating him, a non-party, as a party but only for the purposes of discovery.

There may be grounds for applying equitable estoppel, and even for applying it solely to discovery as the district court did in the instant case. But, if those are the grounds, the district court should provide: (1) more explicit factual findings supporting this, and (2) since it seems to us to be possibly a new legal theory, citations to whatever adjacent support exists. That way we may decide whether to adopt that theory, which may be a broadening of the concept of equitable estoppel. Alternatively, if it is not a broadening because there are cases on point, we invite the district court's assistance in telling us so.

We therefore vacate the order and remand the case, so that the district court may decide how to proceed. If the court deems it appropriate to hold Clare in contempt of court, it should address the issues set forth above, so that this Court may ascertain the appropriateness of such action.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, we vacate the contempt order and remand the case to the district court for proceedings in accordance with this decision.

DATE FILED: 9/1/2017

LEWIS A. KAPLAN, District Judge.

Defendants move for an order compelling ICBC (London) plc ("ICBC") to respond to a trial subpoena dated August 22, 2017. The subpoena purports to be returnable on September 7, 2017. The trial is to begin on September 6, 2017. ICBC opposes the motion on a number of grounds. At present, however, it suffices to address only one.

Defendants have not filed any conventional proof of service of the subpoena on ICBC. Rather, their moving declaration relates only that (1) defendants' counsel had a number of communications with Paul Hessler, Esq., who represents ICBC in the civil case in which (i) the orders that defendants are accused of violating contumaciously were entered and (ii) the government filed the petition to hold defendants in criminal contempt, and (2) Mr. Hessler took the position that the civil case and this prosecution are separate cases, that ICBC is not a party in this criminal case, and that he is not authorized to accept service of a subpoena in this case. Defendants' declaration attaches as Exhibit B an email chain that indicates that defendants' counsel provided a copy of the subpoena to Mr. Hessler.

In opposing defendants' motion, ICBC argues that it has not been, and could not be, served in this action. Its argument in essence rests on the proposition that this criminal contempt proceeding and the civil case in which ICBC is a plaintiff-judgment creditor (and in which Mr. Hessler appears on its behalf) are entirely separate. Defendants, however, contend that service on Mr. Hessler (assuming that emailing him a copy of the subpoena constituted service) was valid because, in view of this Court's previous orders, this prosecution is part of the underlying civil case.

These opposing arguments in other circumstances might raise interesting questions in light of the fact that criminal contempt proceedings occupy a unique position in our jurisprudence:

"A contempt proceeding is sui generis. It is criminal in its nature, in that the party is charged with doing something forbidden, and, if found guilty, is punished. Yet it may be resorted to in civil as well as criminal actions, and also independently of any civil or criminal action.” Bessette v. W.B. Conkey Co., 194 U.S. 324, 326 (1904).

But it is unnecessary for present purposes to probe the precise boundaries here.

The fact that Mr. Hessler is counsel to ICBC in the civil case would not make the purported service on him (even if that purported service were sufficient, which it was not) effective as to ICBC regardless of the view taken of the fact that this prosecution was initiated by a petition filed by the government in the civil case. Mr. Hessler is not the witness whose attendance, and the production of whose documents, the subpoena seeks to compel. Even a party to a civil case who is represented by counsel must be served personally with a subpoena. Service on a party’s lawyer is not sufficient. Harrison v. Prather, 404 F.2d 267, 273 (5th Cir. 1968) (service of subpoena on lawyer for party insufficient); Cadlerock Joint Venture, L.P. v. Adon Fruits & Vegetables, Inc., No. 09-cv-2507 (RRM), 2010 WL 2346283, at *3 (E.D.N.Y. Apr. 21, 2010) (“service . . . on plaintiff’s counsel, as opposed to personal service on plaintiff, . . . improper”) (citing Harrison); Aristocrat Leisure Ltd. v. Deutsche Bank Trust Co. Ams., 262 F.R.D. 293, 304 (S.D.N.Y. 2009) (“Unlike service of most litigation papers, service on an individual’s lawyer will not suffice.”); In re Smith, 126 F.R.D. 461, 462 (E.D.N.Y. 1969) (“service of subpoena on plaintiff’s counsel, as opposed to personal service on plaintiff, . . . improper”) (citing Harrison); 9A CHARLES ALAN WRIGHT, ET AL., FEDERAL PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE: CIVIL § 2454 (3d ed. 2017 update) (same); see Khachikian v. BASF Corp., No. 91-cv-0573 (NPM), 1994 WI, 86702, at *1 (N.D.N.Y. Mar. 4, 1994). The relevant language of the criminal rule is substantially identical.¹ And defendants’ application would be denied even if one were to pass over that rather obvious point.

Rule 17(d) of the Rules of Criminal Procedure provides for service of subpoenas in criminal cases. It states in relevant part: “A marshal, a deputy marshal, or any nonparty who is at least 18 years old may serve a subpoena. The server must deliver a copy of the subpoena to the witness and must tender to the witness one day’s witness-attendance fee and the legal mileage allowance.” Rule 17(e) governs the permissible place of service, and clause (2) provides that “[i]f the witness is in a foreign country, 28 U.S.C. § 1783 governs the subpoena’s service.” Rule 45 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provides for the service of subpoenas in civil cases, is to exactly the same effect, as Rule 45(b)(3) is substantively identical to Criminal Rule 17(e)(2). Thus, regardless of whether this criminal contempt proceeding is to be treated—for purposes of service of subpoenas—as part of the underlying civil case or as a separate criminal case, the bottom line is that the availability and service of a subpoena on a witness outside the United States is controlled by Section 1783 of the Judicial Code.

Section 1783(a) authorizes a district court to issue a subpoena to “a national or resident of the United States who is in a foreign country.” Section 1783(b) goes on to provide in relevant part:

Fed. R. Crim. P. 17 provides that “[t]he server must deliver a copy of the subpoena to the witness.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(b)(1) provides that “[s]erving a subpoena requires delivering a copy to the named person.”

"Service of the subpoena and any order to show cause, rule, judgment, or decree authorized by this section . . . shall be effected in accordance with the provisions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure relating to service of process on a person in a foreign country. The person serving the subpoena shall tender to the person to whom the subpoena is addressed his estimated necessary travel and attendance expenses, the amount of which shall be determined by the court and stated in the order directing the issuance of the subpoena."

In this case, defendants did not seek, and this Court did not issue, an order authorizing the issuance of this subpoena.² Nor would the Court authorize its issuance nunc pro tunc because it is undisputed that ICBC is "a foreign bank located approximately 3,500 miles from the courthouse." DI 69. It is not "a national of the United States who is in a foreign country." Accordingly, Section 1783(a) does not authorize issuance of a subpoena to it. See Aristocrat Leisure, 262 F.R.D. at 305; United States v. Korolkov, 870 F. Supp. 60, 65 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (citing Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(e)(2), 28 U.S.C. § 1783, and United States v. Johnpoll, 739 F.2d 702, 709 (2d Cir. 1984)); accord WRIGHT, supra, § 2462.

For the foregoing reasons, defendants' motion to compel ICBC [DI 59] to respond to the subpoena dated August 22, 2017 is denied in all respects.

The Clerk of Court ordinarily provides to counsel, on request, signed and sealed subpoena forms with counsel left to fill in the name of the witness and perhaps the date and time of the required appearance. The Court assumes that is unobjectionable where the witness subpoenaed is in the United States. Section 1783(b), however, refers explicitly to an "order directing the issuance of the subpoena." Thus, the issuance of a § 1783 subpoena is appropriate only upon a judicial order.

1 the issue in the charge conference and maybe on motions, but I
2 will tell you that provisionally without hearing anything from
3 either of you about the case. It seems to make a lot of sense
4 to me. The case is G & C Miriam v. Webster Dictionary, 639
5 F.2d, 29 principally at page 37 but not only on page 37.
6 That's the first item.

7 Now, I have Ms. Fitz's letter of September 3rd. Does
8 anybody have anything further to say about the subject raised
9 there?

10 No.

11 MS. FRITZ: Your Honor, with respect to that letter,
12 we forwarded the letter and now we've had a bit of a dialogue
13 on it. The government did respond on the issue and we provided 14 some additional remarks in our September 5th letter. All of 15 those relate to the same issue that was presented in the 16 September 3rd letter.

17 THE COURT: Yes. I've seen the September 5th letter
18 also. It seems to me that the government is allowed to prove 19 the two civil contempt orders in the civil case because they go 20 at least to the question of whether failure to comply with the 21 underlying disclosure orders was willful at least from the date
22 of the civil contempt adjudications. There is authority that 23 in my view supports that. As long as we have a moment, I will
24 find it here. I refer to United States v. Wells, 1994 WL
25 421471 and Red Bull Interior Demolition v. Palmaressa, 908

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 F.Supp 1226 at 1241. There may be other authority, but those
2 are the things I have in mind.

3 With respect to that, I have the two orders of 4 contempt before me. I don't know what their exhibit numbers
5 here are. The first one is Document 108 on the civil docket.
6 I think there could be some redactions from this that might
7 improve the situation. So try to follow along with me.

8 The second paragraph, which starts with the words
9 "Having considered," over onto page 2 and concluding with the 10 words "reasonable manner" seems to me might be usefully might 11 be redacted because the recitals I don't think do much of 12 anything, and they contain findings that are not necessary to 13 the willfulness and indeed the knowledge issues to which this 14 is also relevant.

15 Secondly, paragraphs two through five are unnecessary
16 and could be redacted. I don't know if either side has a view
17 as to whether the fact that I am the judge who signed the order
18 should remain or should be redacted, just my name and 19 signature.

20 Does anybody have any comments on those proposed 21 redactions?

22 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: One clarification, point, your 23 Honor. The order, which is Government Exhibit 311 and is the 24 October 24th, 2016 order, referenced the redaction of paragraph 25 five. I assume you're meaning what you have renumbered as

1 paragraph five in addition to the excised?

2 THE COURT: No, I didn't renumber it. I don't think I
3 renumbered anything. Oh, I see what you are saying. There are 4 two paragraph fives. I was proposing to redact both of them.

5 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Okay.

6 THE COURT: Any other comments from either side on the 7 proposed redactions?

8 MS. FRITZ: Your Honor, with respect to any of the 9 issues relating to contempt, it has been our position
10 throughout that the contempt information should not be 11 presented. I understand that your Honor just referenced --

12 THE COURT: I understand that. I am ruling against 13 you.

14 MS. FRITZ: I want the record to reflect that both
15 sides have now cited for the Court the decision in Senffner
16 that your Honor didn't reference a moment ago.

17 THE COURT: Which I have read and to the extent, if 18 any and I doubt much, it supports or point of view, I disagree
19 with it in this context on these facts.

20 MS. FRITZ: It appears, though, that your Honor is 21 being guided by it somewhat though by trying to remove findings
22 that would be redundant to what the jury is being asked.

23 THE COURT: If you don't want them removed or you want
24 to remove different ones, you should tell me. I mean no
25 disrespect. This is not a continuing seminar. I am offering

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

H966blavd1

1 to redact material because I am trying to be responsive to
2 concerns you have raised where I think the proposed redactions
3 are not necessary to the proper use the government in my view
4 is entitled to make of the contempt finding. Now, if you don't 5 like the redactions, you don't want them, you want them all to 6 stand, fine; but I am not going to back to square one of the 7 discussion of whether the fact of the contempt will go before
8 the jury. It will.

9 MS. FRITZ: Our position is on the record. We 10 appreciate the redaction.

11 THE COURT: Fine.

12 With respect to the order finding Mr. Brennerman
13 personally in contempt, which was Docket Item 139 in the civil 14 docket, I am treating essentially the same way. The second 15 full paragraph, except for the final fragmentary sentence which 16 reads "The Court therefore orders that" would be redacted. At 17 least that is my proposal. It seems to me paragraphs two and 18 three are unnecessary to the proper use. If the defense wants 19 them out, I will take them out.

20 MS. FRITZ: The defense's position is we would like to 21 keep two, but the other redactions are fine.

22 THE COURT: Two is relevant why and what is the 23 government's position? Let's take the government's position
24 first.

25 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Well, your Honor, it is not

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 immediately clear to me what the relevance of two is.

2 THE COURT: Do you object to it? You wanted to put
3 the whole order in.

4 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Yes. We don't have an objection
5 to it.

6 THE COURT: Paragraph two will stand. That takes care
7 of that. So that takes care of the September 3rd letter.

8 Now we have Ms. Fitz's letter of September 5th, Docket
9 Item 86 in the criminal docket. What is going on with these 10 transcripts and motion papers, Mr. Landsman-Roos?

11 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Yes, your Honor. At this time
12 we're not intending to enter in as exhibits the transcripts or 13 the motion papers, at least they are in the 300 series, which 14 is cited in the letter. The one potential exception is the 100
15 series are documents that were found in Mr. Brennerman's
16 apartment. So to the extent the motions existed there, they 17 are relevant to his notice, knowledge, willfulness.

18 THE COURT: Ms. Fitz.

19 MS. FRITZ: My position is to the extent that the 20 motions are being put in, whatever may be the rationale for 21 them being put in, we would object to it first of all but also 22 we want to make certain that whatever the opposition is,
23 whatever the opposing pleading is also becomes part of the 24 record.

25 THE COURT: We'll deal with it if and when it arises.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 Q. Mr. Hessler, does the document reference the fact that the 2 settlement discussions are ongoing?

3 THE COURT: The document speaks for itself. Next
4 question.

5 I'm sure the members of the jury are fully capable of 6 reading it.

7 Q. All right. During that time period, September of 2016, did
8 the settlement discussions continue between you and Blacksands?

9 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

10 THE COURT: Sustained.

11 Q. During the period September 27th through and continuing on 12 from there, did the settlement -- did the discussions continue
13 between you and Blacksands regarding payment of the judgment?

14 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

15 THE COURT: Sustained.

16 MS. FRITZ: If we could pull up Exhibit Y.

17 Q. As of on or about Monday, September 26th, did you 18 communicate over to Chris Harris certain terms pursuant to 19 which ICBC would accept -- would agree to a settlement of the 20 matter?

21 A. Bear with me.

22 (Pause)

23 Yes.

24 Q. And did you communicate that by email over to Mr. Harris?

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. OK. And is that the email that you are looking at there,
2 Exhibit Y?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. OK.

5 MS. FRITZ: I offer into evidence Exhibit Y.

6 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

7 THE COURT: Ground?

8 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: It is the 403 connection issue
9 that we have discussed.

11 BY MS. FRITZ:

12 Q. Did you communicate to Mr. Harris in that same email that 13 ICBC has agreed --

14 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

15 THE COURT: Ms. Fritz, I just sustained the objection
16 to the document.

17 MS. FRITZ: Yes.

18 THE COURT: And you know that it is inappropriate to 19 refer in a question to the contents of a document that is not 20 in evidence, and your question is embarking on embodying the 21 content of the document I just excluded and thereby bringing it
22 to the attention of the jury, in violation of my ruling. The 23 objection is sustained. It's not to happen again.

24 BY MS. FRITZ:

25 Q. On or about September 26th, did you also confirm to Chris

1 Harris that ICBC was forbearing its further --

2 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

3 Q. -- discovery -- demand for the discovery at that point?

4 THE COURT: Answer that yes or no.

5 A. I don't recall.

6 Q. I understand. If you could take a look at the document and 7 see if that refreshes your recollection, particularly paragraph

9 (Pause)

10 A. So, I'm sorry, can I have your question again?

11 Q. Did you communicate to Mr. Harris, on or about 12 September 26th, that ICBC was forbearing pressing its discovery
13 demands at that point?

14 A. No.

15 Q. Did you state to Mr. Harris that ICBC will not seek further
16 relief --

17 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

18 THE COURT: Are we talking about a telephone
19 conversation, a meeting, or the document I've excluded?

20 MS. FRITZ: We're talking about the communication that 21 did occur in writing in the document.

22 THE COURT: Sustained.

23 Q. At the time September 26th, were you continuing to pursue
24 the discovery demands relating to the Court's order dated
25 August 22nd?

1 A. My client and I had no need to pursue discovery if we were
2 going to receive payment of the judgment. The entire point of 3 discovery was to enable us to enforce the judgment. On 4 September 6th, when Mr. Harris represented to the Court that 5 Blacksands agreed to pay the judgment, we put some faith in 6 that because of the standing in which we held Latham & Watkins
7 and Mr. Harris. And in reliance on his representation to the 8 Court that Blacksands had agreed to pay the judgment, we 9 unilaterally took the position that we would not continue to 10 litigate to obtain the responses that we were entitled to on 11 September 6th because we didn't want to waste the money doing
12 that because we had been led to believe, by Mr. Harris, that we 13 would imminently receive payment.

14 Q. With respect to the settlement discussions, or discussions
15 regarding payment of the judgment, I believe you stated during 16 your direct examination that Blacksands had not provided
17 specific information about its proposal for payment of those --
18 of the judgment?

19 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

20 THE COURT: Sustained.

21 Q. Did Blacksands during this period of time provide specific 22 proposals -- specific information regarding how it could pay
23 the judgment?

24 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

25 THE COURT: Sustained.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 Q. Did Blacksands --

2 THE COURT: It is not an accurate summary. Let's just 3 go on.

4 Q. Did Blacksands, during this period of time, provide 5 information regarding how it intended to pay the judgment?

6 A. In vague terms we received sort of very, you know, sort of 7 10,000-foot level explanations of where the money would come
8 from. For example, I don't recall if it was this proposal, but 9 there was one proposal that some unrelated party had proposed
10 to put up a residential apartment in Manhattan as security 11 pending payment of the judgment, for example. We had a lot of 12 communications from Blacksands about potential financings from 13 which we would be paid. None of them had come to fruition. We 14 were now three years into this litigation, and we were not 15 going to put our faith in those further vague statements.

16 So, we asked for specific information, for example,
17 who owned the property, were there any security, were there any 18 liens on the property, was there a mortgage on it, how was the 19 financing proposed to work, how was the grant of security
20 proposed to work. And other than the initial high-level
21 description of what was planned or proposed, we never received 22 the concrete details that we had asked for that would have 23 given us the assurances we would have needed to forbear from 24 enforcement.

25 Q. You mentioned this issue of security. Was that an issue

1 that ICBC had raised, that it wanted security if the proposal
2 was that its judgment would be paid sometime in the future?

4 THE COURT: Ground?

5 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: The same objection, 403.

6 THE COURT: Anything else?

7 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: I think there is also perhaps a
8 form objection there.

9 THE COURT: Sustained at least as to form.

10 BY MS. FRITZ:

11 Q. Let's just take a step back.

12 The proposal that Blacksands made with respect to 13 paying the judgment, did that involve a project that Blacksands
14 was currently involved in?

15 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

16 THE COURT: Sustained.

17 Q. Was the discussion that was going on relating to providing 18 information about a project from which Blacksands intended to 19 pay the judgment?

20 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

21 THE COURT: Sustained.

22 Q. Based on the conversations that occurred, was there
23 discussion, now moving into the November timeframe, regarding a 24 meeting, Blacksands and ICB attending a meeting to further
25 discuss the proposal that Blacksands was making?

2 THE COURT: Sustained.

3 Q. Did a meeting then occur in London?

5 THE COURT: Sustained.

6 Q. In connection with the document production that was 7 provided by Mr. Brennerman, the one that you looked at earlier,
8 you had indicated that it included documents regarding some 9 contracts, things like that. Do you recall that?

10 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

11 THE COURT: Sustained. It is not an accurate summary
12 of what he said. He said, as I remember, notably, though there
13 may have been other things, two unsigned leases for office
14 space, or something like that.

15 MS. FRITZ: OK.

16 Q. Do you have a recollection of whether that discovery that 17 was provided also included documentation relating to the 18 project that Blacksands was involved in at that point?

19 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

20 THE COURT: Sustained. That assumes that there was in 21 fact a project that Blacksands was involved in.

22 MS. FRITZ: Not assuming that, again --

23 THE COURT: Of course it does. The question says, "Do
24 you have a recollection of whether that discovery that was 25 provided also included documentation to the project that

1 Blacksands was involved in at that point?" That was your
2 question.

3 BY MS. FRITZ:

4 Q. At the meeting in London, was there an extensive
5 presentation done for ICBC regarding Blacksands' project?

6 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

7 THE COURT: Sustained. There was no evidence of any 8 meeting in London, there are simply questions, to which 9 objections have been sustained.

10 The jury is reminded that the questions are not
11 evidence.

12 MS. FRITZ: If we could pull up Defendant AI.

13 Q. OK. So let me just ask you, Mr. Harris, was there a
14 meeting in London at the offices of Exotic --

15 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

16 THE COURT: I believe you already asked if there was a
17 meeting in London. I sustained that objection. Am I mistaken,
18 Ms. Fritz?

19 MS. FRITZ: Your Honor just indicated that I needed to 20 prove that there was a meeting.

21 THE COURT: I didn't say that at all. I said your 22 question assumed that there was one. I didn't say you had to 23 prove it. I sustained the objection to your attempt to do so,
24 if indeed there ever was a meeting.

25 Now, let's get on with it.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 Q. Mr. Hessler, if you could take a look at Exhibit AI. Is 2 that a communication that you had with Chris Harris during the
3 period November 2016?

4 A. Yes, it is.

5 Q. OK. And does this relate to the discussions that were 6 occurring between --

7 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

8 THE COURT: Sustained.

9 Now, I don't want to do this, but if you can't ask
10 proper questions from this point onward, I'm going to have to 11 consider terminating your examination.

12 I have made the ruling. This material is not 13 relevant. You are going to go on to a different subject, or 14 you are going to sit down.

15 MS. FRITZ: If we could pull up Government Exhibit
16 309.

17 Q. Did there come a time on or about October 14th when ICBC
18 filed an order to show cause for an adjudication of contempt
19 against Blacksands?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And is Exhibit 309 a copy of the document filed by 22 Blacksands but also with entries by the Court?

23 A. Yes. This is a copy of the order to show cause that 24 commenced that motion, yes.

25 Q. All right. And can you briefly explain what is meant by

H97dbla5

Hessler - cross

1 Q. OK. And those continued through the period September and 2 October, is that correct?

3 A. No. I believe that discussion ended prior to the end --
4 prior to the beginning of October.

5 MS. FRITZ: All right. If we could pull up
6 Defendant's Exhibit X.

7 THE COURT: F as in Frank or S as in Sam?

8 MS. FRITZ: X as in x-ray.

9 THE COURT: I can't get it right.

10 BY MS. FRITZ:

11 Q. And if you could take a look at that, Mr. Hessler. Let me
12 know when you have had a chance to review it.

13 (Pause)

14 A. Can this be enlarged? Or is it in the binders? It is in 15 the binders.

16 (Pause)

17 It was enlarged and it shrank. I'm not sure who is 18 doing that. Is it in these binders? May I look?

19 May I look at it here?

20 Q. Yes.

21 A. Thank you.

22 (Pause)

23 OK. I see it.

24 Q. All right. Does this relate to the discussions that were 25 being had between ICBC and Blacksands regarding payment with

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.

1 respect to the judgment?

2 A. This refers to exactly what I just said. It was
3 Blacksands' promise to pay the judgment on September 6th and 4 then the parties' attempt to agree on the amount that would be
5 due in order to satisfy the judgment, yes.

6 Q. Does this also reflect the fact that there were a couple of 7 conferences in front of the Judge during this period --

8 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

9 Q. -- with respect to that issue of payment on the judgment?

10 THE COURT: What is the objection?

11 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: First of all, the document is not 12 in evidence.

13 MS. FRITZ: I'm not introducing it.

14 THE COURT: Can I have the question read back, please.

15 (Record read)

16 THE COURT: The objection is sustained. You are 17 asking for the content of the document.

18 BY MS. FRITZ:

19 Q. During this period of time, were there also a couple of 20 conferences with the Court regarding payment of the judgment?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. And did you in this -- in a letter to the Court update the 23 Court regarding what was going on with respect to those 24 settlement discussions?

25 A. Yes. That's what this letter is.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.

H97dbla5

1 Q. Yep. And during this period of time, did you also agree,
2 on behalf of ICBC, to not continue to seek enforcement of the 3 discovery order while these discussions were continuing?

5 THE COURT: Sustained.

6 Q. Was there -- if you could go to page 2.

7 Did you agree during this period of time, while 8 discussions were continuing, that you were not seeking to 9 enforce the Court's order?

11 THE COURT: Sustained.

12 Q. And did you advise the Court --

13 THE COURT: You are asking for the content of the 14 document.

15 MS. FRITZ: No. I'm asking whether --

16 THE COURT: Yes, you are.

17 Q. Mr. Hessler --

18 THE COURT: You told your colleague to put up page 2
19 and in substance asked him what's on page 2.

20 Q. The question is do you recall whether during that period
21 you had agreed not by letter to the Court, did you agree with 22 Mr. Harris that you were not pressing enforcement of that 23 August order while the parties were trying to resolve it?

24 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

25 THE COURT: Ground?

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.

1 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: 401, 403.

2 THE COURT: Sustained.

3 Q. Did you also advise the Court during this period that ICBC
4 had refrained from pursuing enforcement of the order?

6 THE COURT: Sustained.

7 MS. FRITZ: I offer into evidence Defendant's X.

8 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Objection.

2 MS. FRITZ: Count One of the petition asserts that the 3 failure to produce during the period August 22nd through 4 September 27th constitutes a willful deliberate violation of 5 the Court's order. I'm trying to get out the fact that 6 Mr. Harris and Mr. Hessler had discussed something that, one,
7 that might reasonably have been interpreted by the company as 8 believing that this was an acceptable delay in production, that 9 they were not -- they used the words "refrained."

10 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: I think the same relevancy
11 objection previously that we discussed applies and, also, there
12 is a hearsay issue with it.

13 THE COURT: Well, certainly there is a problem from 14 the period September 6th to whenever there is any such 15 agreement, if there was such an agreement. That's the first 16 problem.

17 MS. FRITZ: I would --

18 THE COURT: It's all or any part. And even if there
19 were such an agreement, it is simply not a defense to Count
20 One.

21 MS. FRITZ: I think it would be because it has to be a
22 willful violation of a known legal duty.

23 THE COURT: Right. Known legal duty created by the 24 August 22 order to produce on or before September 6th, and from 25 September 6th to whatever the date of any hypothetical

1 agreement there is a willful disagreement -- a willful failure.

2 MS. FRITZ: They might have misunderstood. They might
3 have been wrong that the parties themselves could agree that
4 this was -- that this production --

5 THE COURT: When did this putative agreement happen?

6 MS. FRITZ: It started right -- this is an update on 7 events that had been occurring.

8 THE COURT: When?

9 MS. FRITZ: During -- I think I have September 7th on.

10 THE COURT: What is the evidence of that?

11 MS. FRITZ: It is in my binder. Do you want me to go
12 through it?

14 MS. FRITZ: OK.

15 (Pause)

16 MS. FRITZ: OK. It references -- I don't know if your 17 Honor remembers, but this all came out in the 18 September 15th conference in front of your Honor that turned 19 into almost a settlement conference. There were two different
20 conferences that were held over that period.

21 THE COURT: There were two conferences and I'm not
22 sure I remember it all in detail, but my general recollection
23 is that Harris was putting forward a position as to what the 24 amount of interest was and Hessler was putting forth a 25 different position on the amount of interest. And I sent after

1 the first conference, at the end of the first conference, I
2 sent them away to see if they could agree. And then I think I
3 got this letter, Defendant's X. I think the second conference
4 may have been the day after this, perhaps not, but that's my 5 general recollection, and they haven't agreed.

6 And I'm not aware of any evidence that anybody said
7 they had agreed on anything in the interim. I'm not aware of 8 any evidence, other than what you are now showing me, X, where 9 Hessler said something about refraining from doing something
10 earlier than the date of this letter.

11 MS. FRITZ: Your Honor, whatever the time period is 12 that's covered by this, what I want in evidence is the fact
13 that during this period, where the government wants to convict
14 him of a crime, there were these events going on that could 15 have caused Blacksands' lack of production to not necessarily 16 be a willful violation of a known legal duty. Obviously, to 17 the extent that there were days -- you know, that there is a
18 day or a week where it should have been done, that's different
19 and the government will argue that, but this becomes relevant
20 to the time period that is their first charge.

21 THE COURT: What about it, Mr. Landsman-Roos?

22 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: It is after September 6th. I
23 don't see the relevance. And if it is in reference to 24 conversations prior to September 6, they are being offered for 25 their truthfulness and it would be hearsay.

1 MS. FRITZ: It's not being offered for truth.
2 Honestly, it's being offered for the fact that this is the 3 information that was being conveyed throughout the case to 4 determine whether Mr. Brennerman's conduct was willful.

5 THE COURT: Well, look --

6 MS. FRITZ: Can I say one more thing?

7 THE COURT: Yeah. Sure.

8 MS. FRITZ: It seems to me that there is something
9 very unfair about trying to convict a guy if there is a 10 standdown on this basis. If these two lawyers sat around and 11 said, look, we're going to stand down and see if we can settle
12 this, then the effort to convict him during that period, I
13 should at least be able to argue that that is not a willful
14 violation.

15 THE COURT: Is there anything in the document, 16 Mr. Landsman-Roos, to which you object on grounds other than 17 relevance?

18 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Aside from a hearsay objection,
19 no.

20 THE COURT: What is the hearsay?

21 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Just the extent to which if it is 22 being offered in terms of what the defendant knew -- and, by 23 the way, there has been no proffer of that type of evidence --
24 or that this was ever conveyed to him, that's one thing. Here, 25 it's being offered for the truth of what's set forth in the

1 letter, meaning there were these conversations on this date.

2 MS. FRITZ: I would argue it is being offered for the
3 fact that this communication was made to the Court in a
4 document that was filed with the Court. And, honestly, if I go
5 back to the computer, you know, certainly Mr. Brennerman
6 received the pleadings.

7 THE COURT: Look, this witness says in the letter: "I
8 write on behalf of ICBC," blah, blah, blah. In paragraph 3, he 9 complains that the documents were to have been produced
10 earlier. They hadn't produced anything. And then he says,
11 quote, In reliance on Blacksands' representation to the Court
12 that it will promptly pay the judgment, we have refrained, for 13 the time being, from seeking relief from the Court."

14 Now, the representation to the Court that they would 15 pay the judgment occurred when? And by what means? It had to 16 have been a written communication.

17 MS. FRITZ: September 6th is what starts it, when 18 Mr. --

19 THE COURT: I didn't ask that question.

20 MS. FRITZ: OK. Mr. Harris sends the Court a letter.

21 THE COURT: There is a letter on the date of this,
22 September 6th, from Harris?

23 MS. FRITZ: Yes. Saying a judgment -- that they will
24 pay the judgment.

25 THE COURT: Do you disagree with that?

1 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: I don't know, your Honor. I am
2 fairly confident it was communicated to the Court on 3 September 15th in a conference, but I don't know about the 4 letter, though.

5 THE COURT: You had better show me the letter.

6 MS. FRITZ: He just described it on September 6th,
7 when the production was due, instead -- do you want me to go
8 get it?

9 THE COURT: I would like to see the letter, yeah.
10 Sorry to bother you.

11 (Pause)

12 MS. FRITZ: (Handing).

13 THE COURT: Thank you.

14 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Thank you.

15 THE COURT: All right. I am being shown a copy of 16 Defendant's Exhibit DN, for identification, a letter dated 17 September 6, in which Mr. Harris says, "Blacksands agrees to 18 pay the amount due under the judgment pending appeal." And 19 then indicates a desire to avoid a dispute over the amount of 20 the interest.

21 Thank you for getting the letter.

22 Now, Mr. Hessler's letter of September 21 says, "In 23 reliance on Blacksands' representation" -- obviously 24 Defendant's Exhibit DN -- "we have refrained, for the time
25 being, from seeking relief from the Court."

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 It seems reasonably clear to me that the "we" who have
2 refrained were the only people who had the power not to 3 refrain, which was Linklaters and ICBC, a unilateral act on 4 their part.

5 MS. FRITZ: Mm-hmm. They may have been wrong. They
6 may well have been wrong, but that doesn't necessarily change
7 the fact that it would impact someone --

8 THE COURT: How do you get over the question of the 9 period from September 6th to September 21st, during which I
10 have heard no evidence and no offer of proof that 11 Mr. Brennerman had any idea that Hessler and his client, who 12 are not seeking further relief in reliance on the promise to 13 pay, or that there was any agreement not to seek relief?

14 MS. FRITZ: You are right, your Honor, I may not have 15 an argument for September 4th, but if I have an argument --

16 THE COURT: How about September 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, right
17 down to 21?

18 MS. FRITZ: Exactly. My view is this is what was 19 going on at the time. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, you
20 decide --

21 THE COURT: What's the this that was going on at the 22 time?

23 MS. FRITZ: He is updating -- September 6th is the 24 communication -- sorry -- the communication over to the Court.
25 It's unlikely that that happened in a vacuum, and so it is more

H97dbla5

Hessler - cross

1 likely that there were discussions going on since, honestly,
2 since the Court issued the order, which triggered --

3 THE COURT: Well, what do you say, gentlemen?

4 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Unless the defense is representing 5 that there is evidence that upon the receipt of these initial 6 communications, they were conveyed by Latham & Watkins to 7 Mr. Brennerman and told him we don't need to comply with the 8 Court's order pause of X, Y, Z, I don't understand the 9 relevance of the documents.

10 MS. FRITZ: And obviously our position is that's 11 exactly what we are not going to be doing is disclosing exactly 12 what the communications were between counsel, but given the 13 fact that this is part of the record that existed at the time,
14 it is arguable, it is an appropriate argument to make.

15 THE COURT: Move on to something else. I will think 16 about it some more.

17 MS. FRITZ: Your Honor, the next exhibits I think --
18 they are all about the settlement discussions.

19 THE COURT: What settlement discussions?

20 MS. FRITZ: Here.

21 THE COURT: You mean the quarrel about the interest?

22 MS. FRITZ: No. They are all about the fact that 23 every day in every way these gentlemen are talking about the 24 settlement.

25 There is another component to this, Judge, and that is

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 as of the next order that the jury is about to hear, your
2 Honor --

3 THE COURT: You mean, the September 27th order?

4 MS. FRITZ: Correct. That order specifically says
5 produce documents unless you settle by a particular date. The 6 settlement conversations that were going on were very real, and 7 so what I'm trying to show is that there are genuine efforts to 8 seek to resolve this --

9 THE COURT: What it all sounds like to me at the 10 moment is that maybe you have an argument as to the period
11 September 21st to September 27th that would not be probative as 12 to the period September 6th to September 21, and all of it is 13 irrelevant to Count Two.

14 MS. FRITZ: No, it becomes all the more relevant to 15 Count Two when the Court specifically in the order says either
16 produce or settle.

17 THE COURT: And then he did neither.

18 MS. FRITZ: Exactly. But this is the framework in 19 which he was operating.

20 And so, your Honor, he is being accused of willful
21 defiance of a Court order.

22 THE COURT: Look --

23 MS. FRITZ: If this individual is making every effort
24 he can -- and your Honor would say he's not, but if he is 25 continuously responding -- and your Honor had no way of knowing

1 this at the time. If he is every single day seeking to respond
2 in relation to the Court orders, that's something that the jury
3 should know to determine whether this is a willful defiance as 4 opposed to -- it is a very different story if he just say
5 forget about it, and that's the kind of thing that this
6 gentleman is trying to suggest: Forget about it. Not 7 interested.

8 (Pause)

9 Your Honor, it's probably not going to work anyway but 10 I will at least give it a try.

11 THE COURT: Well, I think what I will do is I'll take 12 Defendant's X subject to connection, and if you can't connect .
14 may well go out.

15 MS. FRITZ: Your Honor, what if the connection isn't a 16 conduit communication? What if instead Mr. Harris would be in 17 a position to say of course I talked to him about this, but we 18 can't do that without waiving privilege. That's putting us in 19 a box.

20 THE COURT: Well, I can exclude it.

21 MS. FRITZ: I'll take it. I'll take it and take your 22 offer up.

23 THE COURT: OK. Thank you.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 First, the orders are short, clear, specific. They
2 are easy to understand. We have been through them a number of 3 times with the witnesses. The second element, Christopher
4 Harris testified that, among other things, the particular
5 orders in question were communicated to the defendant. Third,
6 they were clearly disobeyed. By September 6th, there was no
7 compliance with the Court's order. By October 4th, there was 8 no compliance with the Court's order. The jury heard evidence
9 that the ultimate production was insufficient. And there is 10 ample evidence that it was willful and knowing and that 11 includes, among other things, the time period that went by, the 12 fact that the defendant had all these documents in his 13 possession and we went through that at length, and his 14 production indicates that -- and his responses to discovery
15 indicate that he understood an obligation and just chose to do
16 something differently.

17 THE COURT: OK. The motion is denied.

18 OK. Now, I have a draft charge which my law clerk
19 will distribute to you and it is short, and we'll start the 20 charge conference at 5 o'clock so that we are in a position to 21 sum up tomorrow morning and get the case fully to the jury.

22 Now, I'm in the process of preparing what will be an 23 addition -- you can distribute them -- an addition to the 24 charge that isn't in there already. And in the most general
25 terms, and subject to it being reduced to writing in a form

1 satisfactory to me, it will go something like this -- in
2 substance like this. It will address the evidence with respect
3 to settlement discussions and it will address the evidence with 4 respect to the purported responses in November -- purported
5 responses.

6 The substance of what I'll say about the settlement
7 discussion argument will be that they've heard evidence about 8 what one side characterizes as settlement discussions and the 9 other -- at least one witness on the other side has something 10 somewhat different. But in any case, the existence of 11 settlement discussions, even if there were any, do not suspend
12 or abrogate an individual's obligation to comply promptly with 13 court orders unless the Court suspends or alters the order.

14 You have heard evidence, I will say to them, about 15 these purported responses, dated November 4th and whatever the 16 other November date is. I propose to instruct them that the 17 crime of contempt is complete as of the first day on which a 18 defendant was obliged to comply with a court order that 19 otherwise meets the requirements for criminal contempt; in 20 other words, all of the elements are satisfied. Evidence of a
21 subsequent compliance or attempted compliance can be relevant 22 to the question of whether the failure to comply earlier was 23 willful.

24 In considering whether the purported responses -- in 25 considering what significance to give the purported responses

1 I hear nothing.

2 I am going to ask my law clerk to distribute a very
3 brief proposed addition, which we'll mark as Court Exhibit B,
4 which is what I discussed earlier.

5 MS. FRITZ: Thank you.

6 May I, your Honor?

7 THE COURT: You want to begin?

8 MS. FRITZ: Unless the government --

9 THE COURT: Has the government had enough time?

10 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Yes. Thank you.

11 THE COURT: Go ahead, Ms. Fritz.

12 MS. FRITZ: It is the first one regarding settlement
13 discussions that concerns me and it concerns me for following
14 reason, but I don't have the law here to cite for your Honor.
15 It concerns me based on the following hypothetical: If the 16 parties in this case agreed on August 22nd that the plaintiff
17 was not further seeking the discovery while settlement
18 discussions were going on and if that continued --

19 THE COURT: I missed the date. August 22nd?

20 MS. FRITZ: The Court order's compliance on the 22nd
21 and actually gives him two weeks.

22 THE COURT: Right.

23 MS. FRITZ: So if as of the date that compliance would 24 have been required, the parties have agreed that ICBC is not 25 pursuing its discovery demands at that point and is instead is

1 very desirous of and wishes to engage in discussions regarding 2 payment of the judgment and if that circumstance continues for 3 a period of time, I totally understand your Honor saying that 4 as a technical matter that doesn't in any way eliminate the 5 existence the Court orders, but I do believe the law says that 6 the parties are allowed to agree between themselves that 7 discovery demands are not being pursued. If that is what is 8 going on and that is being communicated, I have told your Honor
9 before I don't think it is fair to say that someone is in 10 contempt if the adversary has stood down at that point.

11 Now, I am happy to go get the law to say that parties
12 are able to agree on things that may be inconsistent with a
13 pending court order without coming back and getting that order
14 revised. For example, we had all kinds of monetary cases with 15 the government where there is limits on what could be paid. We 16 go to the government and we say, Look, is it okay if we pay the 17 kid's tuition. There is a court order that may restrain
18 payment; but if the parties agree, then that may not be a
19 wilful violation of a court order.

20 That may have been a lousy example.

21 THE COURT: Look, you know, I will give you a counter
22 example. If a court after having innumerable times extended
23 the discovery period in a civil case and finally after two 24 years of delays says July 1st, and I mean it, and the parties 25 on June 30th start talking and they are very desirous of

1 settling and they blow right through it, seems to me the judge
2 is entirely within his rights to say, okay, you are going to
3 trial. I don't care what you agreed between yourselves. It
4 was my order. You didn't do it at your own risk.

5 MS. FRITZ: Is that a willful violation of the Court's 6 order? In other words, I think we're dealing with a very
7 consensual problem here, which is can parties basically agree
8 to things -- I said it a moment -- that is inconsistent with 9 the order. I believe that they can and I believe that is 10 exactly what happened here.

11 THE COURT: Obviously they do. Sometimes it can be a 12 crime. That's the problem. If there were an agreement between 13 two parties where there was a court order to produce the 14 discovery by September 4th that they are not going to insist on 15 it while they are seeking discovery and there is a pending
16 contempt application and then the talks break down and the 17 beneficiary of the court order then presses the contempt
18 application, first thing that could happen is going forward
19 they could get a coercive order forcing compliance.

20 MS. FRITZ: Absolutely.

21 THE COURT: The place where the agreement pinches them
22 is that the extent civil contempt is a compensatory remedy as 23 well as coercive seems to me they would be blocked from getting 24 damages caused by the delay in compliance during the period in 25 which there would be a delay in compliance. It seems to me

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.
(212) 805-0300

1 also that that example doesn't answer your point.

2 MS. FRITZ: I think there is a couple of issues.
3 Honestly, if on a particular day there is an agreement that
4 discovery is not being demanded and if on that day -- you can 5 argue the next day he violated the order but at that point is 6 there a willful violation of a court order, I do not believe
7 so. Not only here did the parties deal with precisely that
8 issue, but the parties then went onto exchange settlement
9 agreements that also would have addressed settlement of any 10 contempt sanctions.

11 THE COURT: Civil.

12 MS. FRITZ: Yes. So the parties were in this case
13 treating the Court's orders as if they were suspectable of 14 alteration by the parties in terms of amount, in terms of 15 whether the order to -- the demand for production applies today
16 or tomorrow or the next day. They were treating it as if they 17 had the ability to impact the Court order. Whether they were 18 correct or incorrect, I don't know. This instruction to me
19 goes a step too far to basically say I would argue it suggests
20 that the parties cannot do that and as a matter of law I don't 21 think that is correct nor do I think it is appropriate where 22 the pivotal issue is willfulness and whether an individual in 23 Mr. Brennerman's position would have understood that if Hessler
24 says okay now we're going to settle, let's go meet in London, 25 let's go do all these things to try to resolve this because

1 honestly ICBC just wanted its money, if all that is going on,
2 would he know that no matter with a Paul Hessler says, he is
3 engaging in a violation of the Court's order?

4 THE COURT: I will hear from the government.

5 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Well, your Honor, first of all,
6 the vast majority of this is not even in evidence. So we're
7 arguing from a hypothetical. Our view is that the instruction
8 is appropriate for at least two reasons. First, is that 9 largely, and this was argued by my colleague this morning and 10 it is in our letter briefing, in many ways this argument
11 amounts to a collateral attack on the underlying order. Even 12 if you credit defense counsel's argument that this somehow goes 13 to willfulness, the law is pretty clear that willfulness or 14 good-faith defense is limited to the circumstances where an 15 individual tries to comply but fails.

16 So the example here would be had Mr. Brennerman
17 gathered up a lot of the bank records in his apartment and a
18 lot of things on his computer and missed some and that was held
19 to have violated the Court order, that would be a plausible
20 good-faith defense. This I didn't understand the law or I was 21 given the wrong view of the law is not a valid good-faith
22 defense. So the Court's instruction is totally appropriate.
23 It is not a defense to willfulness if he thought in the civil 24 context -- even if this is true and there is evidence that he 25 thought in the civil context their settlement discussions could

SOUTHERN DISTRICT REPORTERS, P.C.

1 put things on hold.

2 THE COURT: One more minute, Ms. Fritz.

3 MS. FRITZ: Now I am going to the clearest example I
4 can think of which is Mr. Hessler indicated that forbearance
5 concept in the documents that are in evidence. He sat on the 6 witness stand and he said, We have no interest in pursuing that 7 issue if we were going to settle. That is in evidence. If 8 that information is communicated by Mr. Harris to 9 Mr. Brennerman saying, okay, he has agreed to standdown while 10 we try to settle this thing, it goes to knowledge of whether 11 there is an extant duty. It goes to willfulness. It goes to 12 intent. Even if he is wrong and I am not sure he is wrong.

13 THE COURT: Last one minute, government.

14 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: The only thing I would add is the 15 citation Remini decision from the Second Circuit that my 16 colleague put on the record this morning defines the parameters
17 of a good-faith defense, discusses in that context a mistake of 18 law defense in terms of what advice was given by counsel. It
19 is not exactly advice of counsel defense here. We think the 20 principle is similar. To the extent Mr. Brennerman's lawyers
21 told him what was going on in settlement discussions, that is 22 not a basis for a good-faith defense.

23 THE COURT: My present disposition is to overrule Ms.
24 Fritz' objection. I will think about it some more overnight
25 and before summations somebody remember to ask me whether I

1 changed my mind.

2 MS. FRITZ: Obviously, your Honor, particularly given
3 the nature of my personality, I will try to find some case law
4 also.

5 THE COURT: That's not a bad idea.

6 There is nothing else on Exhibit B, right?

7 MS. FRITZ: That's correct.

8 THE COURT: How long do you expect to be on closings?

9 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: We're still refining but my hunch
10 is less than a half hour.

11 THE COURT: Ms. Fritz?

12 MS. FRITZ: I shall strive for the same.

13 THE COURT: Look, the last thing I want here is ~ 14 summations interrupted by objections. I would say that is the 15 penultimate thing I want. The last thing I want is summations
16 interrupted by objections that require me to instruct the jury
17 either in the middle or later with respect to what counsel has 18 just said. By this time you all know what I am going to charge
19 and you all know the in limine rulings and you all know that my 20 view quite clearly is that summations are based on the evidence
21 of record not on anything else. I trust you will comply with 22 that. It is in nobody's interest otherwise.

23 Thank you.

24 MR. LANDSMAN-ROOS: Your Honor, one other issue. I
25 mentioned there would be the potential instruction on documents

Oil Exec Accused Of Lying To Banks Is Convicted Of Contempt

By Jack Newsham

Law360, New York (September 12, 2017, 8:40 PM EDT) -- An oil businessman who failed to disclose his assets to a Chinese bank that won a $5 million judgment against him was found guilty of criminal contempt on Tuesday, with a New York federal jury taking less than three hours to convict.

Raheem J. Brennerman and his company, sued in 2015 by an affiliate of the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China for defaulting on a loan, were each found guilty of two counts of contempt for failing to comply with discovery requests. The verdict comes about three months after prosecutors hit Brennerman with new charges for trying to trick ICBC and at least one other lender out of $300 million.

In closing arguments Tuesday, a lawyer for Brennerman said ICBC buried him with questions about his financial information at the same time as settlement talks were ongoing, and said the bank already had the information he was charged with hiding. But U.S. Department of Justice lawyers told jurors the evidence was clear, showing that Brennerman knew his obligations and willfully ignored them.

"The defense's arguments are distractions," prosecutor Robert Sobelman said. "If you look at the evidence in this case without distractions, then the defendants are done."

Brennerman's lawyers sometimes bucked at the constraints upon them. Although Maranda Fritz, a partner at Thompson Hine LLP, rejected prosecutors' charge that her client showed "defiance" of the court's orders and suggested he simply deferred to his lawyers for matters related to the ICBC case, her effort to explain his actions was at times stymied.

When Fritz said the list of discovery demands slapped on her client was "as big as a truck," the prosecution's objection was sustained, with U.S. District Judge Lewis Kaplan telling jurors that it didn't matter whether the pile of interrogatories was "as big as a truck or as small as a SmartCar." The judge also clamped down when Fritz made a reference to evidence that wasn't admitted.

"They are not permitted to suggest that my rulings are wrong," he instructed jurors.

The jury didn't take long to reach its verdict, breaking for lunch and deliberations at 2 p.m. and returning shortly before 5 p.m., finding both Brennerman and his company, Blacksands Pacific Group Inc., guilty of two counts of criminal contempt related to two discovery orders they were accused of ignoring.

A juror who spoke to Law360 and gave her last name as Gordon said the jury was swayed most strongly by Judge Kaplan's civil contempt orders against Brennerman. One juror was initially unsure of whether he was fully aware of the consequences, but the judge's second contempt order was very clear, Gordon said.

"He had to know [of the legal risks] because if he didn't comply he was going to be fined a lot of money," she said. The closing arguments were not particularly influential, Gordon added, saying jurors stuck to the evidence and followed the judge's instructions.

APPENDIX I

Sentencing is set for Dec. 21.

Meanwhile, Brennerman faces still more criminal charges related to the ICBC dispute. He was arrested and his bail revoked earlier this year after prosecutors charged him with bank fraud, wire fraud, visa fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud for falsely claiming to ICBC that he had a deal lined up to buy a California oil field so he could obtain a loan. He told other banks a similar story, the government alleged.

Pretrial motions in that case are due at the end of next week.

A lawyer for Brennerman and Blacksands declined to comment. The Justice Department doesn't comment on lawsuits.

The government is represented by Robert B. Sobelman and Nicolas T. Landsman-Roos of the U.S. Department of Justice.

Brennerman is represented by Maranda E. Fritz and Brian D. Waller of Thompson Hine LLP.

The case is U.S. v. Blacksands et al., case number 1:17-cr-00155, in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York.

Madgett - cross

1 (Jury present)

2 THE COURT: Okay. Have a seat. We will now begin the 3 cross-examination of Mr. Madgett by Mr. Waller.

4 CROSS EXAMINATION

5 BY MR. WALLER:

6 Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Madgett.

7 A. Good afternoon.

8 Q. When did you say you started working for ICBC?

9 A. 2009.

10 Q. And you work for ICBC in London, correct?

11 A. Correct.

12 Q. And it is a subsidiary of a Chinese bank?

13 A. It is a subsidiary and a branch of a Chinese bank.

14 Q. ICBC London is not FDIC insured; is that correct?

15 A. You are referring to the U.S. arrangement?

16 Q. That's correct.

17 A. No, it would not be because it's an operation in the U.K.

18 Q. When your credit committee makes a decision, a credit
19 decision whether or not to give a loan or not to give a loan,
20 what sort of documentation does it produce? Does it produce a
21 memo that explains its reasons or analysis for giving a loan?

22 A. The credit committee will have a series of minutes which 23 reflects a discussion of the case in credit committee and 24 records the decision of the credit committee.

25 Q. Did you ever produce the documents from that credit

1 committee, the ones you just described, to the government?

2 MR. ROOS: Objection.

3 THE COURT: You can answer.

4 A. To my knowledge, no. But I need to state perhaps it's 5 appropriate to say this: After the loan was defaulted, the 6 internal process of the bank means that the direct relationship
7 managers who were responsible for that dialogue step away and 8 the defaulted loan is then passed to a different department.
9 So, I'm not fully aware of all aspects of what has happened to 10 the management of the loan after around April 2014.

11 Q. And when I say produced to the government, I meant to the 12 prosecutors here in this case. You understood that?

13 A. I understood that and to my knowledge, no, that has not *
14 been the case.

15 Q. But ICBC did produce a lot of documents to the government,
16 correct?

17 A. All I can state is that the documents were provided to our 18 legal advisors and then our legal advisors have interacted with 19 the U.S. Attorney's office.

20 Q. Would it be fair to say that some documents that are in the 21 underwriting file for ICBC were produced to the document and 22 others were not?

23 A. Some documents will have been passed across. I do not know
24 whether or not all or some. I'm not in -- I don't have that 25 knowledge.

1 Q. Is there an underwriting file for a loan application such
2 as the one we are dealing with in this case?

3 A. There would be a credit application document which is where 4 the case for making the loan has been summarized, and that is
5 the credit application document which then goes to credit
6 committee for approval or decline.

7 Q. Do you know if that -- well who would have prepared that
8 document?

9 A. I would have been one of the main authors of that document.

10 Q. Do you know if that document was produced to the 11 government?

12 A. I do not and I wouldn't see great relevance in it, but I do
13 not know if it has gone to the government.

14 Q. Well, relevance is not really your determination, correct?

15 A. Correct, correct. Yes.

16 Q. So you don't know if it was produced to the government and 17 it certainly wasn't produced to the defense, correct, by ICBC?

18 THE COURT: Well, do you know?

19 THE WITNESS: I don't know, but I'm assuming from your 20 question that it wasn't.

21 THE COURT: Well, don't assume.

22 THE WITNESS: Okay, sorry. My apologies.

23 THE COURT: The jury knows not to assume anything from 24 a question. So, you just answer as to what you know.

25 THE WITNESS: All right.

1 BY MR. WALLER:

2 Q. Was there an answer?

3 A. Could you repeat the question, please?

4 Q. Yes.

5 Do you know if that document that we were talking
6 about was ever produced?

7 THE COURT: He answered. He said I don't know.

8 THE WITNESS: I don't know.

9 THE COURT: And then he started assuming things and 10 that's when I jumped in.

11 BY MR. WALLER:

12 Q. So the answer is you don't know?

13 A. I don't know.

14 Q. Now, you first met Mr. Brennerman in 2011, correct?

15 A. Yes.

16 Q. Did you meet him in person for a meeting?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. Jumeirah Carlton Tower Hotel, does that sound right?

19 A. On one occasion I met him in a hotel, yes.

20 Q. At that point when you met him I think you testified that 21 there were no firm deals that he was bringing to you at that 22 point? There were no deals that he was bringing to you, he was 23 just making an introduction?

24 A. When the initial interaction between us started, yes.

25 Q. And, do you recall when the first deal was that he brought
